Bootleg Drama.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

AN extinct pterosaur skeleton in Oregon should have a place in the Smithsonian Institution beside Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis."

Reptiles of the pterosaur family are the first things that ever flew on this earth, ahead of the Wright brothers by many millions of years.

FIRST they flew as reptiles, scaly, unpleasant. Then they developed feathers, seen on the archeoptery discovered in Germany.

Then came real birds.

They were originally the most intelligent, enterprising animals, knowing enough to get off the earth out of harm's way.

But being safe they stopped thinking. Now birds are not intelligent.

MAN, who never flew until lately, had to stay on the ground with his weak hands, small teeth, and no claws, dodging everything. Fear made him think, and thinking made him boss of the planet. Remember that in your business.

NEW YORK appointed 14 to investigate vice, and the 14 report conditions "simply terrible."

Night clubs are worse than old "Raines law" hotels. "Dance studios" are studios of vice, and hostesses of clubs, doubtless with honorable exceptions, represent an ancient profession, as well left undescribed.

THE thousands of speakeasies in New York are worse than the thousands of saloons used to be, because the doors are not open.

In short, you get the impression that passing a law doesn't change human nature.

IN northern cities, where large colonies of colored men and women are permanently established, financiers will not lend on apartments built for Negroes. Colored people have been compelled to live in dilapidated tenements, paying high rents, more than whites had paid. The system has been demoralizing, unjust, harmful to whites as well as blacks.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, in New York City, and Julius Rosenwald, of Chicago, set a good example, supplying apartments, well built, at reasonable rentals for colored families.

Mr. Rosenwald will invest $2,500,000 in an apartment to house 400 Negro families. Tenants will pay lower rents than heretofore, and the investment will pay 6 per cent interest.

IN New York, in a district already occupied by colored people, Mr. Rockefeller has built an even larger building, the Paul Lawrence Dunbar apartments for Negroes.

White men brought the colored people here as slaves against their will, and it is the business of civilized white men to see that they are treated decently and have fair opportunities.

BOOTLEGGING under prohibition is at least dramatic.

One bootleg gangster, Frankie Uale, was murdered by other gangsters.

Prosperot Petroino, brilliant young detective, tried to identify Uale's killers, supposed to have been sent to New York from Chicago.

As Petroino sat at dinner on Sunday night, bullets came through his dining room window from an automobile flying past.

THE stake involved in these killings and counter-killings amounts to $1,000,000 a year at least.

Prohibition authorities, bewildered, admit that recently "vast quantities of rum had been diverted from government warehouses, 100,000 gallons in one case."

The Republicans deny that prohibition is an important national issue. Criminals don't agree with them.

MRS. CLEM SHAVER, wife of the Democratic national chairman, denounces the Democratic ticket and platform, saying no good American woman will vote for it.

Will Rogers says "Clem's wife threw a cat into the electric fan."

THERE will be many cats thrown into Republican and Democratic electric fans before the campaign ends. It is going to be a woman's fight on both sides and the female of the species will show professional politicians some things they never knew. Women say what they think, very little inhibition.

SALOONS, HOTELS, STORES HIT

Eighteen "padlock" injunction suits were filed today in Federal Court by Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington against saloons, hotels and stores in Pittsburgh, Braddock, Homestead and Harmarville.

The administrator alleges in bills of complaint that the places were conducted as common nuisances through violating the prohibition law. Judge R. M. Gibson granted preliminary injunctions during which time the proprietors and owners of the properties are restrained from permitting further violations.

Each of the complaints is supported by affidavits by prohibition agents alleging "buys" of contraband liquor in the places cited. Since July 1, 1927, the prohibition authorities have instituted in the Federal Court pleas for 189 "padlock" injunctions against establishments in the Pittsburgh district.

Among the places named in the complaints are Dew Drop Inn, a cabaret, on the Freeport road at Harmarville; saloon in the Ann Street Hotel, Homestead, and saloon in the Acorn Hotel, Fourth avenue.

Injunctions totaling 189 have been presented by the U. S. prohibition administration here since July 1, 1927, to date. By months they were:

1927—July, 1; August, 14; September, none; October, 15; November, 2; December, 14. 1928—January, 4; February, 15; March, 4; April, 58; May, 18; June, 26; July 18.

MINERS MAY ABANDON JACKSONVILLE SCALE

INDIANAPOLIS, July 10.—(AP.)—Conditions confronting union miners in the bituminous coal fields of the nation were the basis of discussion today by members of the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America in a special meeting called by John L. Lewis, international president.

The executive board sessions will be followed tomorrow by a meeting of the policy committee.

MAY ABANDON SCALE

Reports were prevalent here as the board members assembled that Harry Fishwick, president of the Illinois district of the union, would seek a recession from the official body that all wage negotiations must be conducted on the basis of the Jacksonville scale, which provides $1.08 per ton for men on a tonnage basis and $7.50 per day for day wage men.

A large number of mines in Indiana and Illinois have been idle since the Jacksonville agreement expired, April 1, 1927. Others under temporary agreements to pay the union scale have continued operations. Production has fallen heavily in both states.

CONDITIONS CHANGED

Fishwick, it is reported, has contended that conditions in the soft coal mines of Illinois have changed to such an extent that it is no longer feasible for the miners to cling to the Jacksonville wage scale and seeks a change in union policy to permit the miners to negotiate separate wage agreements.

The edict under which the miners are held to the Jacksonville scale was given by the highest authority in the miners' organization, the international convention at Indianapolis in January, 1927.

President Lewis refused to make any statement prior to the meetings as to what action was contemplated, except to say that the strike situation would be reviewed and that federal legislation dealing with the industry would be discussed.

Heat Toll Now 6 Dead

The thunder showers which brought temporary relief from the torrid heat wave caused death last evening of David Ball, 22, of Connellsville.

The youth was playing baseball at the Fawcett avenue playground, McKeesport, where he was a visitor when he was struck by lightning. He was taken to the McKeesport Hospital where he was pronounced dead.

The three-day heat wave so far has caused the death of six persons, three of them occurring yesterday.

Mrs. George Ebersberger, 50, of 7239½ Susquehanna street died last night in her home from prostration. Adolph Progner, 45, of 2811 Sherlock st. ?et stricken fatally with apoplexy induced by the heat after reporting for work at the Standard Stoker Company, West General Robinson street, North Side, according to the reports to the coroner.

The other victim was a swimmer who sought relief from the heat in the Allegheny river near Ninth street. He was Harry A. Wallace, 24, of 6112 Station street, who is thought to have been seized with cramps while in the water. His body was recovered last night.

Three others died Sunday. Two from drowning and another from heat prostration.

COOLER IN EAST

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP.)—After a 48-hour hot wave most of the East was comfortable today because of rain and cooling winds. The hot wave claimed over two score lives in Eastern states and as many in the Middle West on its way East.

New York City experienced the hottest weather in two years. The thermometer reached 92 degrees, the mercury touched 98 in Washington and several other places.

DETROIT, July 10.

SHERIFF C. A. THRIFT, of Decatur, Ill., lives up to his name.

When Detroit police wired him last week that they had arrested John McDonald, 35, wanted in Decatur on an abandonment charge, he wired back to hold the prisoner until Monday.

Arriving, he explained that there was an excursion rate to Detroit from Decatur for yesterday and that he had taken advantage of it to come after his prisoner.

2 COUPLES JIG TO TUNE OF BANDITS' GUNS

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 10.—Two prominent Uniontown women and their male escorts were held up, robbed, compelled to dance a barefoot jig to revolver shots and then to walk a mile through tangled underbrush at Lick Hollow, near Hopwood, early today.

Mrs. Ethel Cook, 32, a widow, Miss Mary Bryson, 20, Jay Gibson and Richard Koontz were victims of the "Wild West" holdup staged by two young mountaineers, later captured by State Police.

The two bandits, both masked and armed, confronted Gibson and Koontz as they were repairing a flat tire, the latter told police. The robbers took three diamond rings and a pocketbook containing $5.65 from Mrs. Cook, and $15 from Gibson, after compelling the women to alight.

"Now off with your shoes and stockings and dance a jig," commanded the highwaymen, say the victims.

As the four pairs of feet pattered on the roadway the bandits fired several shots, the victims related, which struck the road uncomfortably near.

After the dance, the robbers, at point of revolvers, forced the four to walk along an old mountain trail to a secluded spot, where they left them.

Making their way back to the National pike, the four entered their auto and later reported their experiences to state highway patrolmen.

A short time later the patrolmen arrested Harry Hickle and James Adey, each 20, in a cabin in the mountains a mile from the scene of the holdup, recovered the jewelry, they reported, and confiscated firearms and loot, believed taken in other robberies.

HOOVER IN LEAD

Wilkinsburg tossed a surprise into The Sun-Telegraph straw vote yesterday, upsetting the consistent Smith balloting with a return of 27 votes for Hoover and four for the Democratic candidate.

To several Wilkinsburgers the Smith numoer was a surprise. "Didn't know there were even four Smith men in town!" one said. "Wait till us Smith boosters start!" insisted one of the four.

On the voting machines downtown, the Smith total continued to roll up nearly a two-to-one favoritism. The City-County Building, that Republicanized payroll community, turned in a vote of 102 for Smith and 41 for Hoover yesterday. The Grand Arcade, having its first voting machine, registered 204 for the Democrat and 119 for the Republican.

The voters yesterday showed their preference in 1924 as 520 for Coolidge and 123 for Davis, thus demonstrating the decided "drift" from party lines.

BUCS SELL MILJUS, MORE MAY GO

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The Pirate housecleaning continues.

Today, Pitcher John Miljus, a product of the local sandlots, who came to the rescue of the Buccaneers in the tight stages of the pennant race last year, was sold down the river to Cleveland, of the American League, for slightly more than the major league waiver price of $7,500.

He follows in the footsteps of Catcher Earl Smith, who was given his unconditional release yesterday, in the club's effort to shake itself out of the rut in which it has found itself all season, after winning the pennant last year.

As in the case of Smith, the Pirate management announced it could not see how the retention of Miljus could help the team in its present straits.

MORE TO GO

Whether or not the ax would fall on any more members of the Pirate payroll was not indicated, but the belief exists that several more athletes Adam's apples are exposed to the overhanging blade.

In the middle of the 1927 fight, the Pirates paid the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League a tidy sum for Miljus. John reported immediately and in the remaining half of the season he won eight and lost three games, besides rendering valued aid to distressed pitchers in contests in which he received no official credit.

It was Miljus who turned the tide for the Pirates in the contest that clinched the pennant in Cincinnati on the day preceding the end of the season. After Ray Kremer and other Pirates had floundered in this important battle, John checked the Reds and the Buccos romped to the all-important triumph.

WORLD SERIES HERO

Used twice in the relief role against the Yankees in the World Series, the tall Serbian was one of the heroes of the series, despite the sorry showing of the Pirates. In the first game of the October classic, John relieved Kremer and made the Yank batters appear easy. But the damage already had been done.

Miljus rose to unusual heights in the final clash of the series in the Yankee Stadium. He fanned Lou Gehrig and Bob Meusel with the winning run on third and none out, and was "bearing down" on Tony Lazzeri when one of his offerings got away from Johnny Gooch, the

GANG KILLS 2

SEE WRONG MEN SHOT

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Brooklyn's gang warfare flared up again last night, the toll being two dead and two wounded.

Police today, however, expressed the opinion that the murderers made a mistake and shot the wrong men. All four victims were Porto Rican longshoremen and had no known connection with any gang.

The murderers, five young men about 21 years old, shot from a fast-moving green sedan and mowed down their victims with deadly accuracy. Only four bullets were fired and each found its mark.

Police believe the five marksmen were involved in a feud as a result of the recent assassination of Frankie Uale, former king of Brooklyn's underworld, and may have been imported here from Chicago. The quintet escaped in the green sedan.

The dead were Tolitto Marrero, 22, and Florentino San Just, 19; the wounded are Rouble La Porto, 19, in a serious condition at Cumberland Street Hospital with a wound in the left jaw, and Isaac Garcia, 18, shot in the left shoulder.

The streets were crowded at the time of the shooting.

Police admitted that the victims may have been connected in some way with the Uale shooting, and were intentionally shot; or may have been involved in the smuggling of drugs and been shot by men not connected with the Uale affair.

W. VA. CONSTABLE AGAIN ARRESTED IN SHOOTING

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., July 10.—(AP.)—Vernon Hughes, Cameron constable, was held in the Marshall County jail here today without bail after he had been arrested on a warrant charging first degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of James Bryan, 30, a Board Tree (W. Va.) farmer.

Bryan's father made information. Previously the officer had been released on his own recognizance. A group of persons from the eastern part of Marshall County yesterday protested his release. Re-arrest followed.

The "auction" for Beatrice Albert, 19, Siren, Wis., is on again. She seeks a man who will provide for her parents in return for her hand in marriage. Ocean Racing Yacht Sinks

STEAMER RESCUES CREW

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Saved at sea when the schooner Rofa sank in the yacht race to Spain for the Queen of Spain's cup, Mrs. William Roos and the five men who comprised the crew are due to reach New York today aboard the steamer Tuscarora.

They were rescued about 800 miles east of New York when both of the schooner's masts were carried away.

On board the Rofa, smallest of the four schooners which left New York on June 30 as the first squadron in the trans-Atlantic race, were the owner and captain, Edwin Hotchkiss, of Houghton, Mich.; Charles Townsend, of Ipswich, Mass.; Walter Schoeler, of New York, and the cook.

Mrs. Roos was the first woman to join the crew of a yacht in a trans-Atlantic race. She was piloting the Rofa at the start.

WORLD GIRDLERS MAKE UP LOST TIME

International News Service.

MOSCOW, July 10.—John Henry Mears and Capt. Charles Collyer, Americans, who are trying to make a round-the-world trip from New York by plane and steamer within 28 days, were flying over Manchuria today, headed for Mukden, said a dispatch from Chita.

By racing their plane at 150 miles an hour and going without sleep they have made up the 17 hours they were behind their schedule. Collyer, who has been suffering from tonsilitis, is better.

By JOHN HENRY MEARS.

(Copyright, 1928, by the New York American, Inc.)

NOVOSIBIRSK, Russia, July 9.—This city is known as the Chicago of Soviet Russia.

Buildings are going up so fast that the city changes its appearance yearly. Several times whole six-story structures have collapsed because the concrete was not sufficiently settled.

A 13-course Russian banquet with a score of toasts, which Lieut. Charley Collyer was compelled to miss because of illness, were not conducive to a sound rest last night.

As I left the hotel, a brilliant Siberian moon shone down, squinting sternly as though disapproving the audacious gesture of two mere men trying to break its 28-day record around the world.

The effects of the heavy banquet were additionally disconcerting when our plain, the "City of New York," ran into a violent wind storm crossing the Ural Mountains. The ship was tossed about like an eggshell, falling into pockets so deep that it barely missed the mountain peaks.

We gained 300 miles on our schedule Sunday, although we lost three hours due to our change in time.

Collyer still is suffering greatly from his attack of tonsilitis, which is becoming more serious, but he is carrying on with a fine courage that makes it an honor to be his associate on this adventure.

Although nearly choking with swollen tonsils, Collyer manipulated the plane through a series of storms with great skill. It looks now as though we will break the record.

(John Henry Mears and Charles B. D. Collyer are trying to break the present record by encircling the globe in less than 28 days. They send their story daily, by cable and by radio, exclusively to The Sun-Telegraph in Pittsburgh.)

50 SAVED BY DREAM

Two fires, one in Woods Run, the other in West View, drove scores of persons from their homes into the streets, caused injuries to two firemen and destroyed property valued at $16,500 early today.

The Woods Run fire started in the rear of the hay and grain store of the J. C. Brown Feed Company, 3166-3168 McClure avenue. In fighting it Hoseman William Ostermyer was struck in the face by a firebrand and Capt. James Barbin overcome by smoke. Both are members of Engine Company No. 44. The fire was discovered by Mrs. Joseph Nemeth, whose home was above the feed store, when her 3-year-old son, Billy, troubled by a nightmare, fell out of bed. The noise roused Mrs. Nemeth and led to the spreading of a general alarm. The flames caused $15,000 damage and drove 50 persons in 12 families from their homes.

The West View fire was in the 44-room Ciro Hotel at 4719 Perrysville avenue. Twelve guests and 10 employes were forced to flee. Motormen and conductors from the West View car barns of the Pittsburgh Railways Company carried ladders to the hotel and helped a dozen men and women out of the blazing structure. The loss was placed at $1,500.

MELLON SURE ON HOOVER

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP.)—With Republican leaders laying plans for their promised vigorous drive for Eastern votes, Secretary Mellon has added the weight of his opinion to the situation by predicting that business will support Herbert Hoover as it has President Coolidge.

Mr. Mellon's views were made known tersely late yesterday. He was confident of Republican success in November and declared the outlook "as promising as it can be at this time." The Treasury secretary will sail tomorrow for a short sojourn in Europe.

As a means to an effective campaign in the East, already termed the battleground of the political struggle, Chairman Work of the national committee is considering the advisability of inaugurating a series of regular weekly conferences to be attended by Eastern party leaders for the purpose of discussing the progress of the campaign and meeting developments as they arise.

So far as is known, he has arrived at no definite decision on this point, but at any rate, he has called for such a meeting at New York on Monday. It is expected that the conference will be similar to that held here on Saturday, at which an Eastern advisory council was formed. Mr. Work plans to be present.

GIRL'S "AUCTION SALE" FAILS; PUT UP AGAIN

MILWAUKEE, July 10.—(AP.)—Beatrice Albert, the 19-year-old "Auction Girl" of Siren, Wis., has renewed her quest for the man who will provide for her parents in return for her hand in marriage.

Miss Albert confessed that the plan did not satisfy her, but that it was the only one she has been able to think of by which the future comfort of her father, mother and brother could be assured.

"I wouldn't mind working if I could get anywhere by doing it," she explained, "but under the circumstances I think the only solution is for me to marry some man who will take care of my parents."

When she first made this offer six months ago she received numerous proposals. Eventually she accepted the offer of W. W. Goynes, 48, postmaster of the Soldiers' Home here, to provide a home for her parents on a six months' trial basis. At the end of the half year she was to decide whether she would marry him.

TWO MONTHS ENOUGH

With the trial four months to run, Miss Albert has decided she cannot go through with it. Goynes' attitude toward her "having a good time" during the six months' period was the reason she gave today for cancelling the arrangement.

"He told me when we first came down here that he wanted me to meet some young fellows and have a good time," she said. "When I did, he objected. He accused me of being rude to him,althouogh I always treated him as nicely as I could.

"I know now I can never marry him. Under the circumstances, I can no longer live in his house."

FEARED GRATITUDE

Goynes, who lost a leg in an accident following the Spanish-American War, agreed that the bargain was off.

"I did what I could for the girl," he said, "because I didn't want her to hurry into a marriage which she might regret afterward. I never talked of marriage to her, because I am much older than she and handicapped in my physical condition. I was almost afraid that through gratitude for what I had done for her, or something of that sort, she might fall in love with me."

During the two months trial period the Albert family lived in one of the houses Goynes owns here.

Miss Albert said she would return to Duluth, Minn., where she was working before moving here. She said she would go over the numerous proposals she received when her first offer was made.

"If I ever marry, I want to marry for love," she said, "but on the other hand, my parents' future must be my first consideration. I couldn't bear to see them cared for by the county or the state. Even though I dread marriage as a loveless proposition, I see no other way."

ICE FLOE REFUGEES CRAZED

STOCKHOLM, July 10.—(AP.)—The five survivors of the Italia are ill with fever and most of them show signs of partial insanity, according to word received from the Swedish rescue ship Quest today.

Little hope is held for their immediate rescue. Their morale is low.

Lieut. Einar-Paal Lundborg, marooned on the ice near Foyn Island with them for 13 days, said that his stay was terrifying. They had very little food, and what he got was rather unappetizing. They were reprovisioned before he was rescued, however.

Lieut. Lundborg asserted that all the survivors were suffering from fever, and most of them showed signs of mental aberration. Giuseppi Biogo, radio operator, was suffering from fever for the last two days before Lundborg was rescued, but nevertheless he arose at least twice daily to operate the wireless.

Since Lundborg was rescued, last Friday, there has been no radio contact with the marooned men, advices from the Quest said.

Hope for rescue of the marooned men appeared today to lie in the Russian ice breaker Krassin. This vessel found progress through the ice field slow, but today was 25 nautical miles away from the marooned men. Eventually, says Capt. Tornberg, head of the Swedish rescue mission, if ice conditions improve, the ship can reach the refugees.

Prospect of rescue by air was believed today to be dwindling. The Swedish leader recommended that the large Swedish Junkers plane be sent home.

INTEREST

The interest in the camp, as in all camps, centers for the most part not on howitzers and the like, but in the kitchen. These bright-looking boys are the ones directly responsible to this unit for setting out three times a day that stuff!

'JUST KIDS' COMIC CREATOR HERE

Big Nickel

RICHARD MYTTON

Who bemoans the nickel's loss of power. Richard Mytton went from Los Angeles to Boston, leaving with a nickel and arriving with a dime.

Ad Carter, creator of the Just Kids comic strip in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and originator of the Just Kids Safety Club, is spending this week in Pittsburgh as the guest of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. He spoke at two large meetings yesterday, another this morning and is scheduled to address another gathering tonight.

At noon yesterday he was speaker at a meeting of the directors of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council and in addition to telling how he organized the safety club, he drew the principal characters in the Just Kids comic strip. The directors thanked Mr. Carter and The Sun-Telegraph for their joint efforts in encouraging safety. Their appreciation was expressed in a resolution presented by William Boyce, commercial manager of the Pittsburgh Railways Comopany.

Yesterday afternoon he gave an illustrated lecture before 3,000 conductors and motormen of the Pittsburgh Railways Company. The meeting was held in the Homewood barns of the company. This morning he addressed 500 industrial executives at the headquarters of the Pennsylvania State Department of Labor and Industry, in Grant street.

Tonight Mr. Carter will be the principal speaker at the annual conference of the Portland Cement Safety Association in the William Penn Hotel. While in Pittsburgh, Mr. Carter and his wife are stopping at the William Penn Hotel.

BRAUN HONORED BY SHERIFFS

CONNEAUT LAKE, Pa., July 10.—(AP.)—Thomas Sterrett of Erie county was elected president of the State Association of Sheriffs at their annual meeting here yesterday. Other officers elected were: Robert Braun, Allegheny county, vice president; John MacLuskie, Luzerne county, treasurer, and Thomas Cunningham, Philadelphia county, Gower Davis, Lackawanna county, John J. Snyder, Northampton county, J. M. Reynolds, Lawrence county, and Robert Braun, Allegheny county, members of legislative committee.

The legislative committee will present a report today.

SAW 'CHUTE; MAY BE BANKER'S

International News Service.

LONDON, July 10.—Although the family of Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian finanicer, still maintained today that he had suffered an accidental death, two startling reports further deepened the mystery surrounding his fate.

Both reports tended to strengthen the convictions of those who insist that Loewenstein is still alive and that the story of his accidental fall from his plane while crossing the English Channel was a hoax. Neither, however, has substantial confirmation.

The first of these stated that Loewenstein had withdrawn a sum equivalent to half a million dollars from his bank here before leaving Croydon in his plane.

The second originated in Dunkirk, France, where a fisherman stated he saw a parachute drop from the sky near the village of Braydunes, on the French coast, at about the same time Loewenstein's plane was supposed to have been overhead.

Despite these reports, however, funeral services for the Belgian banker will be held in Brussels tomorrow.

Cafe Loss $23,000, Concern Fights Tax of $33

Having lost $23,752, according to its own statement, in operating a restaurant for its employes at the the Edgar Thomson Steel Works, the Carnegie Steel Company does not propose to allow the deficit to become any greater if it can help it. The company filed an appeal in Common Pleas Court yesterday from a $33 mercantile appraisers' eating house tax. The matter will come before the court for a hearing in September.

Pittsburgh As Others See Us

"I imagine that everybody in Pittsburgh owns a bank or a coal mine or a steel mill, or a bevy of hotels."

RUBE GOLDBERG

REUBEN (RUBE) L. GOLDBERG, cartoonist creator of "Bo-Bo Baxter," was born in San Francisco, July 4, 1883; educated at the University of California. Cartoonist on the San Francisco Chronicle, 1904-05, and later on various New York newspapers; is regarded as a pugilistic authority. His comics have been widely syndicated. Lives in Westport, Conn.

Pardon my delay in answering your letter . . . I am up in the country trying to distinguish one flower from another and great cities are a trifle remote at the present time. I have been in Pittsburgh only a few times, but of course have a very kindly feeling for the city on account . . . of discriminating gentlemen who have seen fit to support my grotesque creations all these years.

When I hear the name Pittsburgh I immediately think of prosperity and success. Mellon and Carnegie and names like that loom up in my mind and I imagine that everybody in Pittsburgh owns a bank or a coal mine or a steel mill or a bevy of hotels. Outside of New York, and of course my native city, San Francisco, I think I would like to live in Pittsburgh because the people there seem to know what it is all about. That is, they have the cosmopolitan point of view.

WOMAN AIR PILOT IN CRASH

EL PASO, Tex., July 10.—(AP.)—Undaunted by an accident to her small monocoupe, Mrs. Phoebe F. Omlie, only woman pilot participating in the national air tour from Detroit to the West coast and return, today turned the nose of a borrowed plane toward Tucson, Ariz., the next objective.

Mrs. Omlie and her passenger, Mrs. Edward Stinson, of Detroit, were shaken up, but uninjured yesterday when their plane turned over at Marfa, Tex. Mrs. Omlie attributed the accident to too short a turn after landing to refuel. The women continued the flight to El Paso as passengers in one of the other 23 planes entered in the tour.

On arrival here, Pilot Jack Atkinson turned his plane over to Mrs. Omlie and Mrs. Stinson. He will continue the tour as a passenger in one of the large ships.

With the exception of Mrs. Omlie, all the pilots completed the 500-odd mile flight from San Antonio yesterday without incident.

PETTERS LIKE CEMETERIES

Prevention of petting in cemeteries has become a national problem. This was learned today from W. B. Jones, superintendent of Highwood Cemetery and secretary of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents.

He was told of the complaint of the Rev. A. J. Weisenberger, of New Castle, that young people were using St. Joseph's Cemetery there for love-making. Father Weisenberger said:

"There will be no more warnings to those who stoop so low as to desecrate the city of the dead. Those who violate the rule against petting will be prosecuted."

"Cemeteries all over the country are troubled with the same situation," said Mr. Jones. "Their shrubbery and trees, their secluded shady spots make them particularly inviting to young people bent on petting, especially in the early part of the evening. We have been compelled, to cope with this condition, to close our gates to automobiles at 5:30 p. m. For the same reason cemeteries in New York, Chicago, Cleveland and Cincinnati bar autos after 5 p. m. I have a big sheaf of correspondence dealing with the subject."

"I have a report that nocturnal petters broke the locks and forced open the gates of a cemetery at Newcomerstown, O. A Uniontown cemetery has found it necessary to string electric lights over its inviting nooks.

"Here at Highwood we employ night watchmen and will not permit automobiles to park after night near the gates."

The custodians of Allegheny, Homewood and Uniondale Cemeteries all reported that they had to be constantly on the alert to keep petting parties off the grounds.

LAY STONEBORO DEATH TO HIGH TEMPERATURE

MERCER, Pa., July 10.—Heavy rains last night brought only slight relief from the heat, the temperature nearing 90 this morning. Theodore B. Harlan, 55, car inspector, died suddenly at Stoneboro, yesterday from heart trouble believed superinduced by the heat.

How Strong Is Al Smith In Western Pennsylvania?

To answer this question, that is heard everywhere in Pittsburgh today, the Sun-Telegraph prints a ballot below.

These ballots will not appear every day, but occasionally; and on those days no extra papers will be delivered to any agent nor will papers be sold in bulk to any individual or organization. Ballots received in bulk will not be counted. No more than three in one envelope. Thus a fairly accurate estimate of the relative strength of Hoover and Smith may be determined.

Watch the Sun-Telegraph for announcements of the results.

For President of the United States, I expect to vote for—

HOOVER ☐ SMITH ☐

(Mark X after your choice)

Four years ago I voted for—

Some of those driven out by the flames are (left to right) Mary Franc, Marie Nemeth, Ann Sokolowski, Jewel Framzask, Mrs. Joseph Nemeth and Pauline Nemeth. Bily's nightmare over the feed store routed 12 families. Damage is $15,000.

"JIM" REED FOR WETS

DRY LAW CHIEF ISSUE, SAYS SENATOR

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 10.—In one of the most caustically worded statements of his political career, United States Senator James A. Reed, asserted today that prohibition "will have a controlling, and, I believe, determinative influence in the campaign."

His statement, addressed "to the Democrats of Missouri," was dictated before he left here yesterday to confer with Gov. Alfred E. Smith and party leaders in New York. It urged defeat of Charles M. Hay, dry candidate for the Senate in the Missouri primary, and nomination of his lifelong friend, James A. Collet, a wet.

"The difficulty in this campaign," Reed said, "will be to convince the adherents of prohibition that some better method for handling the temperance problem can be devised than the present prohibition laws.

"Gov. Smith declares the Volstead law must be changed. Hay declares it shall not be changed. If we repudiate Smith's policy we repudiate our candidate. If we repudiate Hay's policy we repudiate the candidate for the Senate, assuming such a calamity as Hay's nomination.

CHIEF ISSUE

"The question is not a minor one—it is one of the very important propositions now before the country. It will have a controlling and, I believe, a determinative influence in the campaign.

"In order to secure votes for Gov. Smith we must go before the people in press and on the platform and present arguments to show Gov. Smith is right when he declares the present conditions to be intolerable and that a change must be made.

"I am absolutely convinced that the name of Charles M. Hay on the ticket will drag it to defeat."

Reed's enmity for Hay, which assumes personal proportions, goes back to post-war days when the Wilsonian wing of Missouri Democracy, of which Hay was a leader, denied Reed a seat in the San Francisco National Convention because of his anti-League of Nations course.

RAPS KLAN

"I am opposed to surrendering the Democratic party of the state of Missouri to the Anti-Saloon League and the Ku Klux Klan. The extremists of either of these organizations will not vote for Smith, but will be found either openly or secretly knifing him at the polls, and when the knifing begins on Smith, it will be extended down the ticket.

"I am opposed to sending to the United States Senate, from the state of Missouri, another Tom Heflin."

Although Hay and Collet have both publicly announced their support of Gov. Smith, Hay frankly states he cannot support Smith's wet stand, while Collet indorses it unequivocally.

Reed, meanwhile, is candidate for no political office.

Zerozone Electric Refrigeration

Huge Loss of Food Due to Lack of Refrigeration

With only 55 per cent of the 28,750,000 American homes having refrigerators, and with only 20 per cent of these using refrigeration all the year, "housewives in the United States lose $700,000,000.00 in food annually through spoilage," according to an engineer of the Middle West Utilities Company, who figures spoilage at ten cents per day for most families, a total of $36.50 per year.

We believe this to be a most conservative estimate. But if your loss does amount to ONLY $36.50 a year, you can operate a ZEROZONE for less than half this amount. You are paying for a ZEROZONE in food waste, why not HAVE one! See the new models at DONAHOE'S, Fifth Avenue. Payments to fit the family budget.

15 DODGE VARE QUIZ

POLL OFFICIALS IGNORE U. S. SUBPENAS

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—(AP.)—Fifteen of 42 poll tax collectors subpenaed to appear today and tell how and to whom they issued tax receipts at the election in November, 1926, in which William S. Vare, Republican, was declared elected over William B. Wilson, Democrat, failed to answer when their names were called at today's session of the Senate committee on privileges and elections.

Wilson's contest against Vare is being heard by Senator Charles W. Waterman, Republican, Colo., in City Hall where the hearing was resumed yesterday after sessions had been held in Washington recently. Wilson, who ran against Vare on the Democratic ticket, charges fraud.

The missing poll tax collectors will be rounded up by the United States marshal if they do not appear before the end of today's sessions.

Each of the deputy poll tax collectors is an election division registrar appointed by the receiver of taxes to accept poll tax payments at the time of registration. All voters not paying a real estate tax must pay a poll tax of 25 cents a year.

Harry Keely, receiver of taxes, testified yesterday that the lists of poll tax collectors had been destroyed, but attorneys for Wilson produced a partial list of such collectors.

JUDGE TO SEEK TOTS' OPINION

Before Judge James H. Gray renders a decision as to who shall get possession of Buddy and Ruth Swiss, 5 and 3, respectively, he wants to have a talk with them. That was indicated in Common Pleas court when, at the conclusion of taking testimony, Judge Gray asked Mrs. Bertha Swiss, Jackson street, to bring in the youngsters.

When Mrs. Swiss and her husband, Allan B. Swiss, separated, last March, Swiss took the boy with him. Mrs. Swiss brought habeas corpus action to get possession of the boy, and Swiss countered with an action to get the girl. Mrs. Swiss has had the children temporarily, except over the week ends.

Argument was heard yesterday, Attorney Esther I. Katten representing Mrs. Swiss and former Judge Thomas J. Prather acting for Swiss.

14 DEAD, 600 ILL IN NEW ENGLAND TOWN

COWS AND MILK EXAMINED AS CAUSE

LEE, Mass., July 10.—(AP.)—Lee was under strict quarantine today as health authorities fought to check the epidemic of septic sore throat which has resulted in the death of 14 persons and the illness of more than 600.

No public gatherings were permitted, restaurants were ordered closed every night after 8 o'clock, no recently ill person was permitted on the streets, and all funerals were made strictly private.

Doctors and nurses from the State Health Department arrived here to assist in the work against the disease. A veterinarian began an examination of cattle in and around town. It was believed that the disease was spread by milk, and precautions were taken to pasteurize it.

How To Be Beautiful

by Maria Jeritza

Outdoor Aids to Your Loveliness

FRESH air is more important to your beauty than food, drink or sleep. It is easy to overeat and quite possible to drink and sleep too much. But the more fresh oxygen you pump into your lungs through deep breathing, the healthier, happier and lovelier you are bound to be.

The lungs are natural ventilators of the body. When they are filled with stale air there is a feeling of physical depression, with jangling nerves. Shallow breathers and those who prefer indoors to out, usually have dull, listless eyes, sallow skin and a general letdown feeling best expressed in three words: "What's the use!"

The moment you step outdoors your lungs, starved for their natural food, will take in a deep, delicious draught of fresh air.

A brisk two-mile walk early in the morning as at the close of day should bring a lovely, fresh rose-tint to your cheeks if your skin pores are not too clogged with make-up to breathe in fresh air. Walk part if not all the way and back again. If that is impossible, make it a point to take a stroll before you go to bed. Give yourself a chance to note the beauty of the moon and stars.

The French have a delightful custom of eating outdoors in summer time. Fortunately, many American restaurants are following this fashion and providing outdoor dining rooms. It is well worth while to look up such a restaurant.

Both morning chocolate and after dinner coffee tastes twice as good when served on a screened-in porch or grassy terrace.

If only city dwellers would make full use of flat roof tops! A porch wing, a reed chair or two with a variety of bright cushions and possibly a strip of protective awning overhead will transform a roof into a charming outdoor living room and possibly bedroom, also, for hot nights.

Too much cannot be said in favor of swimming, tennis, canoeing, hiking and other outdoor sports and games. They give suppleness to the figure, crispness and sheen to the hair, clearness to the eyes, nature's roses to lips and cheeks.

The disadvantages resulting from outdoor life are, of course, freckles, tan, sunburn and the weather-beaten complexion. To banish or, better still, prevent these blemishes, apply plenty of oil to your skin. Rub in cold cream or cocoanut oil or olive oil freely, before and after exposure.

If the damage is already done, you might try a starch bath. Add to a bathtub of hot water half a pound of laundry powder starch. This bath should prove soothing and softening to your skin. A bathing suit cut with the same neckline as your evening gowns will prevent a high-water mark of tan or sunburn.

If your skin is lined after a day's motoring, cleanse it with cold cream, then remove the excess and spread on another thin film to sink in during the night, protecting your pillow with a towel.

Equal parts of peroxide and rose water should fade freckles if dabbed on from time to time. But what are these tiny defects compared with the bloom of healthful beauty gained from a summer outdoors.

BOND VOTE COUNTED IN RECORD TIME

ISSUES CARRY BY AVERAGE OF 2 TO 1

Final count of the vote cast in the special county bond issue election held June 18 was made today by the returning board, which certified the totals to Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley.

He in turn certified the figures to the county commissioners, showing that all of the bond projects had carried by majorities averaging two to one. Work of counting the vote occupied but 10 days time, a record in Allegheny county. The work was handled by 24 clerks and the board was presided over by Judge George V. Moore and Frank P. Patterson, both of whom made short speeches thanking the board for their quick and accurate work.

Every section of the county, with the exception of McKeesport, carried in favor of all items of the bond issue, but the Tube City voted from four to six against it. This has no effect on the proposition, however, as the combined vote of the entire county is what counts. Following are the grand totals:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Yes	74,615	71,652	67,841	71,579	66,807	66,823	72,140

VENICE ENTERS BANKRUPTCY

Memories of Pittsburgh's once lively cabaret belt were jarred rudely in Federal Court yesterday when Venice Restaurant, Inc., once a favorite night resort, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. The petition warded off a constable's sale of the effects, scheduled for today, to pay a $1,166 rent bill to Harry Davis, landlord.

The petition was signed by Charles L. Lazaro, vice president, and resulted in Judge W. H. S. Thomson signing an order restraining the constable's sale.

STEUBENVILLE LAD'S BODY FOUND IN RIVER

WHEELING, W. Va., July 10.—(AP.)—The body of a boy removed from the Ohio River at Warwood Dam, near here, late yesterday, was identified by Alex Koska, Steubenville, O., as that of his son, Alex, Jr., who was drowned when he fell from a wharf 16 days ago.

TOURING SCOUTS VISIT HERE

Leaders in the Boy Scout movement and officers of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council today were hosts to four outstanding scouts of the United States, making an automobile tour from New York to San Francisco in the interests of safety on the public highways and scouting for boys.

The four scouts, Bernard Queneay, of New Rochelle, N. Y.; Carl Zapffe, of Brainerd, Minn.; Edward B. Pratt, of Fairfield, Conn., and Mark M. Hughes, of Joliet, Ill., were in charge of Charles H. Mills, of New Rochelle, and Remo M. Lombardi, of New York City.

Arriving in their "covered wagon" at the Wilkinsburg-city line at 11 o'clock, they were escorted downtown to the traffic monument at Sixth avenue and Grant street, where they gave a demonstration of scout handicraft and first aid work.

Following a luncheon at the William Penn hotel as guests of the Safety Council, the boys were taken to the Allegheny County Scout Council Camp Umbstaetter, near Fair Oaks. They entertained the 250 boys in camp this afternoon with demonstrations.

The welcoming committee included Traffic Engineer B. W. Marsh, and W. D. Boyce, of the Safety Council, and A. T. Benson, J. L. Taylor, Owen Kraft and other leaders of the Allegheny County Boy Scout Council.

BROTHER'S GUN KILLS BOY, 4

Accidentally shot by his brother, who was handling a rifle, Albert Carron, 4, died last night in McKeesport Hospital.

The child was at home in West Elizabeth when, according to a report to the coroner, James Carron entered the room and started to examine the rifle. The weapon was discharged and the shot pierced the child's left chest. Dr. H. L. Stoller of West Elizabeth took the boy to the hospital.

ILL LUCK TAGS LEGLESS FLIER

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., July 10.—Ill luck registered again today in the attempt by M. R. (Dinger) Daugherty, legless, one-arm aviator of New Martinsville, W. Va., to fly to New York preparatory to a trans-Atlantic flight.

In attempting to take off from a hillside at Hecla, this morning, Daugherty's plane struck a fence and a wing was torn off.

Airmen from the Mt. Pleasant airport and the J. D. Flying Field, near here, undertook the task of repairing the damaged plane and Daugherty expressed hope of resuming his flight tonight.

Daugherty began his flight at Moundsville, W. Va., Saturday, but was forced down soon afterward at Hammondville, Fayette county. In landing, his plane was damaged. He repaired it and resumed his course, but was forced down again yesterday at Hecla.

AGENTS AGAIN MOP UP BRADDOCK; NINE RAIDED

Federal prohibition agents swooped down on Braddock last night and raided nine residences, arresting one woman and eight men. Seizures were made at each place, according to the agents. The largest seizure was reported made at the home of Mike McDonough, of 910 Braddock avenue, where, the agents say, they confiscated three barrels of beer, a gallon of whisky and 45 pint bottles of beer.

HOT DAYS ADD TO BABIES' NEED

With The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund totaling only $437.76, officials realize that much more than this is necessary to carry the work through the summer. Torrid days increase the handicaps under which these humanitarians labor, for at no time is a tiny baby's life so endangered as when the mercury soars to the top of the thermometer. Only the most meticulous care can keep the milk in the condition it should be for the little one's safety, and the tiny bodies must be kept cool and thinly clad. These two facts are constantly being impressed on the mothers who are visited regularly by the field secretary. Foreign mothers, particularly, are apt to swath their poor little helpless babies in blankets and other heavy wrappings, and this custom has to be guarded against by the watchful secretary.

Even many of the American mothers have heretofore thought it the correct thing to burden a tiny child with clothing and they also are finding it difficult to adjust their ideas to the new methods. Many of the babies at present in the care of the association are children of better class Americans who, through unemployment conditions, have found it necessary to appeal to the association. A bottle of milk a day may save a baby's life.

Won't you fill a bottle—or two or three?

GENTLEST TO THE HANDS

Famous Beauty Schools choose Lux suds as gentlest to the hands — Advise Lux for Dishes

The National Schools of Cosmeticians—in
New York . Philadelphia
Minneapolis . Cincinnati
Chicago . Detroit . Dallas
Memphis . Denver . Portland
St. Louis . Los Angeles—
famous for leadership in beauty culture—choose gentle Lux suds as best for manicure, after tests.

Try this beauty treatment in your own kitchen! In washing dishes, use the pure, rich suds these famous beauty schools choose as most gentle and soothing to the hands!

RECENTLY, different soaps were experimented with by the National Schools of Cosmeticians—to find the very BEST for use in manicuring.

As a result of these tests, Lux was officially chosen—because its sparkling, gentle suds were found most SOOTHING to the hands!

Mrs. Pearl Ecker Hubbell, Dean of these Schools and famous beauty expert, said, after these tests—

"I have issued instructions to our 12 schools that they are to begin at once to use LUX in manicuring and to let it be known to all of the students and all of the patrons who come into the schools.

"In caring for the hands, there is great danger in using soaps irritating to the sensitive skin of the hands.

"Lux suds cleanse so gently that they soothe the skin and keep the hands beautifully WHITE and SMOOTH."

A Beauty Hint to Wives—"For women in their homes, who must protect their hands in doing housework and dishes," Mrs. Hubbell adds, "I can think of no better BEAUTY aid than the use of LUX."

Try Lux for dishes today! See how nice your hands look afterwards! No wife—no girl—need dread the task now. And Lux is inexpensive, too. The big package washes 6 weeks' dishes.

FORBES IS HIT IN WARFIELD COMEDY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH.

"The Music Master," a David Warfield stage success, is with us in the Pitt this week. And as we watched the plot unfold, we couldn't help but wonder what Mr. Warfield's reactions would have been if he stood in the shadows at last night's premier and watched the Herr Anton Von Barwig that Gus Forbes gives. We believe that Mr. Forbes would have aroused a sympathetic nod and a "well done" from the great actor.

The beauty of the play; its fine sentiment and philosophy of life is known to many theatetrgoers. And who doesn't know the story of sadness and gladness of the old music master, who leaves fame and home in far off Liepzig to come to America to find his wife and daughter? It is 16 years after this event that the play introduces the Herr Professor.

In the first act you chuckle at a budding romance between Jenny, protege of Miss Houton, Von Barwig's lodging house mistress, and one of his pupils, a German youth who can't speak English. You laugh as the music master and his friends gather at dinner and struggle with the spaghetti. And you feel a tug at the heart as you hear the symphony that recalls to the professor the days of his great success.

In the second act you meet the friend who betrayed Von Barwig and learn of "the doll that was never mended." And in the third act, you find the light of hope breaking into the attic at Miss Houston's, that now serves as the professor's lodgings.

Mr. Forbes' Von Barwig is finely acted. His portrayal leaves an unforgetable picture at its finale as the aged music master bids farewell to his friends. Familar faces, he wants to see them smiling—then he turns toward the attic stairway—leaving them behind. They hurry to the bannister lean far over. The music master is gone. But perhaps they hear the echo of his voice: "remember the beautiful things in life."

Outstanding in the large supporting cast is May Buckley, veteran actress of the stage, who last night made her debut with George Sharp's players. She has the role of Miss Houston. Kathryn Demming portrays the music master's lost daughter—the role originally scheduled for Anne Forrest, who is not in the cast this week. Other players include Wi[illegible]rd E. Mead, the German youth; Robert Fisk, Mabel Kroman and George Baxter.

GILBERT FILM IN PENN

John Gilbert, in "The Cossacks," photoplay feature in the Penn this week, has a dashing role in a picture that is genuinely stirring. He is seen as a young Cossack, son of the head man, held to be lacking the firm heroic fiber of his race, but who, in company with his father, is tortured by Turks, and shows he is a chip off the old block. The romantic element is carried by Gilbert and Renee Adoree and both play their parts excellently. The picture, adapted from Count Leo Tolstoi's novel, is dramatic with comedy elements and interesting scenes of Cossack customs and ceremonials, including views of the wild trick riding of these great horsemen. Mitzi Mayfair, remarkable contortionistic dancing child, is easily the feature of the stage bill, directed by Teddy Joyce. It also includes comedy club juggling by Bob, Bob and Bobbie, the latter a dog. Edith Griffith sings solos and the Four Dictators are a male vocal quartet. There also is dancing by the Foster boys and girls. M. G. M. News shows Nobile flight [illegible]. A film comedy and music complete the bill.

VIOLA DANA HERSELF HEADS SHERIDAN BILL

Viola Dana, a motion picture star, appeared in person in the Sheridan Square yesterday, topping the bill of vaudeville in a comedy playlet, "There Goes the Bride" in which she was assisted by Grace Ellsworth and William Johnston is a pre-nuptial skit, it gave a new twist to the triangle. The photoplay feature was Adolphe Menjou in "His Tiger Lady." Angel and Fuller offered comedy, song and dances. Songs were the act of the Texas Four, a male quartet. The Three Nelsons, in a novelty, Irma and Lawrence Flowers, in their specialty and other attractions were on the bill also.

Large Audience in Gayety Sees "The Captive" as Joke But Is Impressed By Acting

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"THE CAPTIVE," against the performance of which clergymen of the city protested in vain to the police department, was presented in the Gayety last night. It attracted an enormous crowd, filling even the upper tier boxes. Most of the patrons left laughing good naturedly as if they had been mostly impressed by the proceedings as a huge joke. Perhaps because of having rubbed elbows with this audience which sat in review of this proclaimed work of the very artiest art of the theater and found itself unable to be serious, the writer finds himself about in the same mood and is disposed to consider "The Captive" as something to be laughed at for its pretensions to reflecting any part of life that well meaning society should pay any attention to.

Not that it was not sufficiently shocking, in its tale of abnormal physical reactions, tragically affecting the lives of the central characters in the play, for it does jar the sensibilities of those whose sensibilities are delicate enough to be jarred. But the real devotee of the theater, one who loves the stage for its great achievements, cannot help thinking that the whole thing is a lot of rot, and one who does think that need not necessarily be one of whom it may be said that the theme went over his head. The point of the whole matter is that, while "The Captive" is intensely dramatic, it is a dramatization of something there was no particular call to dramatize and which adds nothing to the theater as a place of either wholesome entertainment or valuable enlightenment.

It is not the intention of the reviewer to go any further into details as to the nature of the play. If you miss seeing it you will not miss much except some very good acting. If you do see it you will not gain a thing except an addition to your knowledge that every once in a while somebody writes a play that is a sensation because it dares to enter forbidden fields, and that those who follow it there are more apt to find it distasteful than otherwise.

As for the acting of the parts, it scarcely could be improved upon. The histrionic art electrified the audience. Marcia Byron gave a most excellent portrayal of emotionalism in the leading role, and she had the best of support from Bradley Page, in the leading male role; Frank Elliott, Helen Mack, Marjorie Dille and Beresford Lovett.

NIXON PLAYERS AMUSE IN REVIVAL

By GEORGE SNYDER.

An amusing and intensely dramatic revival of a Broadway success, "East is West," was opened by the Nixon Players last night. It was a far call from the type of plays which this company has been producing to the Oriental atmosphere of the prologue but the cast was able to surmount the difficulties.

East met west when Harry Bannister, playing the part of Billy Benson son of the American ambassador to China, was shown a Love Boat on the Yang-tse river where the unwanted daughters of China were sold to be the playthings of men.

When the wilful but naive Ming Toy was about to be sold Benson's compassion was aroused. He persuaded his friend Lo Sang Kee, admirably played by Fred Sullivan, to purchase the girl and to save her. The part of Ming Toy was not as well fitted to Katherine Wilson's talents as her other recent roles but her portrayal of the rebellious little Chinese girl was always entertaining.

Ming Toy was taken to San Francisco by her Chinese benefactor who treated her as his daughter. The girl, however, soon incited the suspicions of missionary workers who demanded that he give her up. Lo Sang Kee arranged to have his friend, Charlie Yang, take the girl into his bower of "rose buds." Howard Freeman enacted the role of this selfsatisfied and half-Americanized Chinaman in an excellent manner.

Just as the girl was about to go with Charlie Yang against her will, Benson returned to America and persuaded his parents to take her into their home. The two fell in love and the apparently insouable problem of a misalliance confronted the young man's family. The baffling situation was solved in an unique manner.

Louise Quinn and Clifford Edge were quite at home in their usual parts of the lovers who, in spite of difficulties, manage to make a match.

RICHARD DIX PICTURE, STAGE ACT IN GRAND

Richard Dix, in "Easy Come, Easy Go," offers the Grand audiences this week a comedy that is a farcical mix-up but which is only faintly hilarious as far as causing laughs is concerned. Fired from his job by his father, he faces the world, meets the only girl, also a sneak thief who has robbed the girl's father, saves his life, attempts to make him go straight and takes what he thinks is the money to restore it to the owner, who is a patient in a sanitarium, where the thief also has gone to escape detectives. There is just as much confusion trying to get things straightened out as you would expect. Nancy Carroll is pleasing in the girl role. Singing and dancing features the stage offering of the Keller-Mack Revue.

PRIZE CONTEST IN THE PINES TONIGHT

A contest will be held tonight in the Pines, Perrysville road, to select the most attractive couple among the dancers. A prize will be given the winners. The Wash-Jeff Nine will furnish the music. The Ladies Auxilliary Society of Beaver Falls will hold a picnic in the Pines Thursday.

DORNBERGER BAND PLAYING IN SANDERS

Playing his first Pittsburgh booking in two years, Charles Dornberger opened a week's engagement last night with his orchestra in Sanders, Aspinwall. Beginning next Monday, Dave Harman will return to Sanders with his orchestra, after a long engagement in the East.

STANLEY STAR CLARA BOW

Clara Bow, in "Ladies of the Mob," current Stanley screen attraction, has a melodrama, which depicts quite a lot of warfare between police and the underworld. It has been well done by its director, William Wellman. Opening sequences—sort of a prologue—effectively depict the electrocution of a convict, while in the warden's office a small girl gets her first horror of the "chair"—a horror that remains with her when she has grown to womanhood and to love a handsome young gangster. Eventually, she gets her bad boy sweetheart to promise to be good. Forced to flee a scence of bank holdup in the East, they go to California. But the quiet life is too much for the young gangster. He finds himself slipping back to old ways and old pals. Then Clara, the heroine, after helping him elude squads of policemen, shoots him and brings the law upon them. The fadeout leaves them with a promise of a happy future—and in handcuffs. Richard Arlen, as the young gangster, does a fine piece of work. The stage show, "All Aboard," entertains. The Three Rah-Rah Girls, dancers, are one of the popular features. Jazz band music, comedy and vocal numbers are among other highlights.

FAMILY GROUP HARRIS HIT

The entirely amusing and refreshing acts that come to vaudeville now and then is being offered in the Harris for the first three days of this week by the Four O'Connors—mama, papa, Bill and Jack. While Brother Bill, the comedian of the quartet, proudly shouts "that's my Mammy," Mrs. O'Connor does some stepping that you don't see very often. Jack and his dad do some clever acrobatic flip-flops. Bill gives a variation of the shimmy dance and makes a song effort. Evdentallly, knowing his weakness, he doesn't sing much. As a finale, a wee tot in the blue sailor suit helps the brothers with a black bottom number. "Tell Tales," a comedy presentation, centering about two old gossips who see the worst in everything, gets the laughs. Johnny Hyman jungles words and chalk in an amusing manner. Scargold, billed as a member of the Northwest Mounted Police, displays talent as a banjo player. Roy Mack and Peggy Brantley, roller skaters, do some fancy whirling. The photoplay is "The Devil's Trade Mark." It presents the thrill theme of modern life. The cast includes Belle Bennett and William V. Mong. Organlogue, news pictures and a cartoon comedy also are on the bill.

EASTERN STAR TRIP ON HOMER SMITH

Members of Franklin Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, will hold their annual boat excursion tonight on the steamer Homer Smith. The boat will leave its Water street moorings at 8:30 o'clock, returning at 11:30 o'clock. A special program of cards and entertainment will be carried out.

SHIFT TRAFFIC AS ROAD IS USED TO STAY DEATH

WHEELING, W. Va., July 10.—(AP.)—In a tent erected in the middle of a highway to protect the victim and workers from a heavy rain, two mine rescue teams, city firemen and two physicians fought a futile battle yesterday to save the life of Frank Martin, 22, a telephone lineman, who had been electrocuted while at work. Traffic was detoured while the fight for life went on.

NAB 2 IN HOLDUP

POLICE HAPPEN ONTO PAIR WITH GUNS POINTED

The newly organized motorcycle night patrol leaped into action by nabbing two alleged gasoline station bandits in West End last midnight.

A few hours after Police Supt. P. P. Walsh had announced the new system, Night Lieut. Harry Hatters and Motorcycle Patrolmen Joseph Leith and Robert L. Richmond arrested Edward Hiebener, Ridge avenue, and Glenn Eckard, of Broadway, McKees Rocks.

The two youths admitted before Magistrate John J. Sweeney, in South Side Police Court, they had held up Jack McCann, of 1948 Greenleaf street, attendant at the gasoline station of the Egan Oil Company, Obey avenue and Noblestown road, and robbed him of $16, just as the patrol happened along. They were held for court charged with highway robbery and pointing firearms.

DIES SILENT, HIDING SLAYER

Hindered by the death-bed refusal of Bainer Cataldo, 50, of 1204 Reedsdale street, to throw any light on the identity of the gunmen who fatally wounded him, police and detectives today are continuing their search for his slayers.

Cataldo died in Allegheny General hospital yesterday an hour after the shooting. Three men in an automobile had wounded him with a shotgun while he was walking in Fayette street. Cataldo was conscious when admitted to the hospital.

Once There Was a Steer that went all over the world. But not until after the meat was prepared for market.

The fine hair in its ears went to Paris to be used in an artist's "camel's hair" brush.

The shin bones went to Sheffield, England, where they became knife handles that were carried in men's pockets to South Africa and London.

The sinews and tendons went to Canada and Mexico — first boiled down into glue used in the manufacture of furniture.

Every part of this steer went somewhere and was used—even tiny glands no bigger than peas went to pharmaceutical houses to be made into medicine.

The farmer who raised this steer was glad to sell it to Swift & Company for a good cash price. If he had prepared it for market himself, it would not have been worth so much. Besides the meat, he could have saved only the hide and fats. All the rest of the steer would have been lost.

Swift & Company handles thousands of animals daily and uses every part of them. Economy results.

You benefit by it. Swift & Company's profit from all sources amounts to only a fraction of a cent per pound

A "used car" is unused transportation

A GOOD automobile is built to stand years of use; but the average first owner trades it in after only two years.

This means that there are many thousands of miles of unused transportation which may be bought at a low price and enjoyed by the second owner.

While not all the cars that are now being traded-in are relatively new, among them you will find opportunities in cars whose intrinsic value is greater than their selling price—a fact which millions of families have already discovered.

Because of the great volume of new cars sold by General Motors dealers, their stocks of cars taken in trade offer a wide range of used car values. And the GMAC Plan of payments is available for the purchase of used as well as new cars.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

HUSBANDS TO ORDER

THERE are just five types of American wives, according to Mrs. C. C. Goodwin, of Chicago—the home-maker, or ideal wife; the jazz or can-opener wife; the nagger, the drudge; the baby doll.

* * *

If this were a fact the eligible young man would have to go around with his fingers crossed. For picking a wife would be staking his life on the longest shot in the world.

HELEN ROWLAND

But women don't come that way. Most women are so highly Burbanked that their faults and virtues are all mixed up. Many a perfect home-maker is a prize nagger; many an eloquent nagger is a faithful drudge; and the cutest, fluffiest little baby doll may be an expert jazz artist and can-opener.

* * *

Neither can you classify husbands.

There is the big Cunarder, who looks SO impressive, but is nothing but a dead weight, who permits his puffing, noisy little tugboat of a wife to tow him all the way up the stream of life.

* * *

And there is the "clinging vine" or masculine gold-digger, who marries to get a mother and is too delicate to work and too weak to sugar his own coffee or draw his own bath.

There is the Big, Big He-Man, or domestic bully, who keeps his wife in a perpetual state of cowed awe and palpitated fear.

* * *

And there is the Sheik or Stepping-Husband, who regards marriage as a parking space where he can leave a woman until he gets through flirting around and ready to go home nights.

* * *

And finally there is the Regular Husband, who works hard all day, comes home promptly to dinner every evening, pays the bills, keeps his hair cut, picks up his own things and loves his own wife.

But many a Cunarder has to be pampered like a clinging vine, and many a clinging vine goes around sheiking while his wife is downtown at work, and many a sheik is a bully around the house. Likewise, many a Regular Husband has his grouches, his weak moments and his vanity.

It's all a matter of what appeals to YOU, and nobody can say which is the Ideal Husband for ANY woman.

* * *

For one woman wants something to "mother," and another wants somebody that she can guide and steer and manage, and another longs for something to lean on and cling to.

* * *

And the Ideal Husband for YOU is the one you love and who makes you HAPPY, whether he's a hero or a bully or a grouch or a weakling or a saint. God gave us all flavors and colors and combinations to suit our tastes!

* * *

There are 57 varieties of husbands and wives. Pick your own combination!

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Wednesday, July 11

THE astrological forecast for this day is a very propitious one. All that pertains to new ventures and renewal of contracts or agreements should prosper, although it is possible that this may involve change or travel. The financial outlook is encouraging and all matters should be pushed vigorously, despite small setbacks or delays.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of general success and prosperity, especially in the launching of new projects. There is a prospect of change or travel of benefit, despite small delays and anxieties.

A child born on this day should be ambitious, clever and talented in many directions, which qualities may assist it to a place of importance in life.

The disciple's effort is that of awakening consciousness in the starry part of himself.—MABEL COLLINS.

Folks Do Lose Fat
without hard work or starving

It is evident on every hand that people do lose fat in these days without starving. Look about you—note how slenderness prevails. Abnormal figures have largely disappeared.

One great reason lies in a discovery made by leading scientists. They found a cause for excess fat in a certain gland deficiency. In a gland which assists nutrition. Thousands of tests proved that fat reduction came by correcting that lack.

A great medical laboratory then embodied that factor in Marmola prescription tablets. They have now been used for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. In every circle you can see the results. Almost anyone has friends who can tell them.

The users of Marmola have told others, and the use has grown. Now people are using some 5,000,000 tablets a month. And excess fat is fast becoming an affliction of the past.

Abnormal exercise or diet is neither required nor advised. One simply takes four Marmola tablets daily until weight comes down to normal.

The Marmola prescription is not secret. The full formula is given in every box, and a book states the reasons for all good effects. You will know that you are taking what modern physicians prescribe, and why the effects are natural and helpful.

Don't suffer longer from abnormal fat. It blights beauty, health and vitality. Learn how Marmola corrects the conditions, and why. Go get a box today, and this day may be a red-letter day in your calendar.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1.00 a box. Any druggist who is out will order from his jobber.

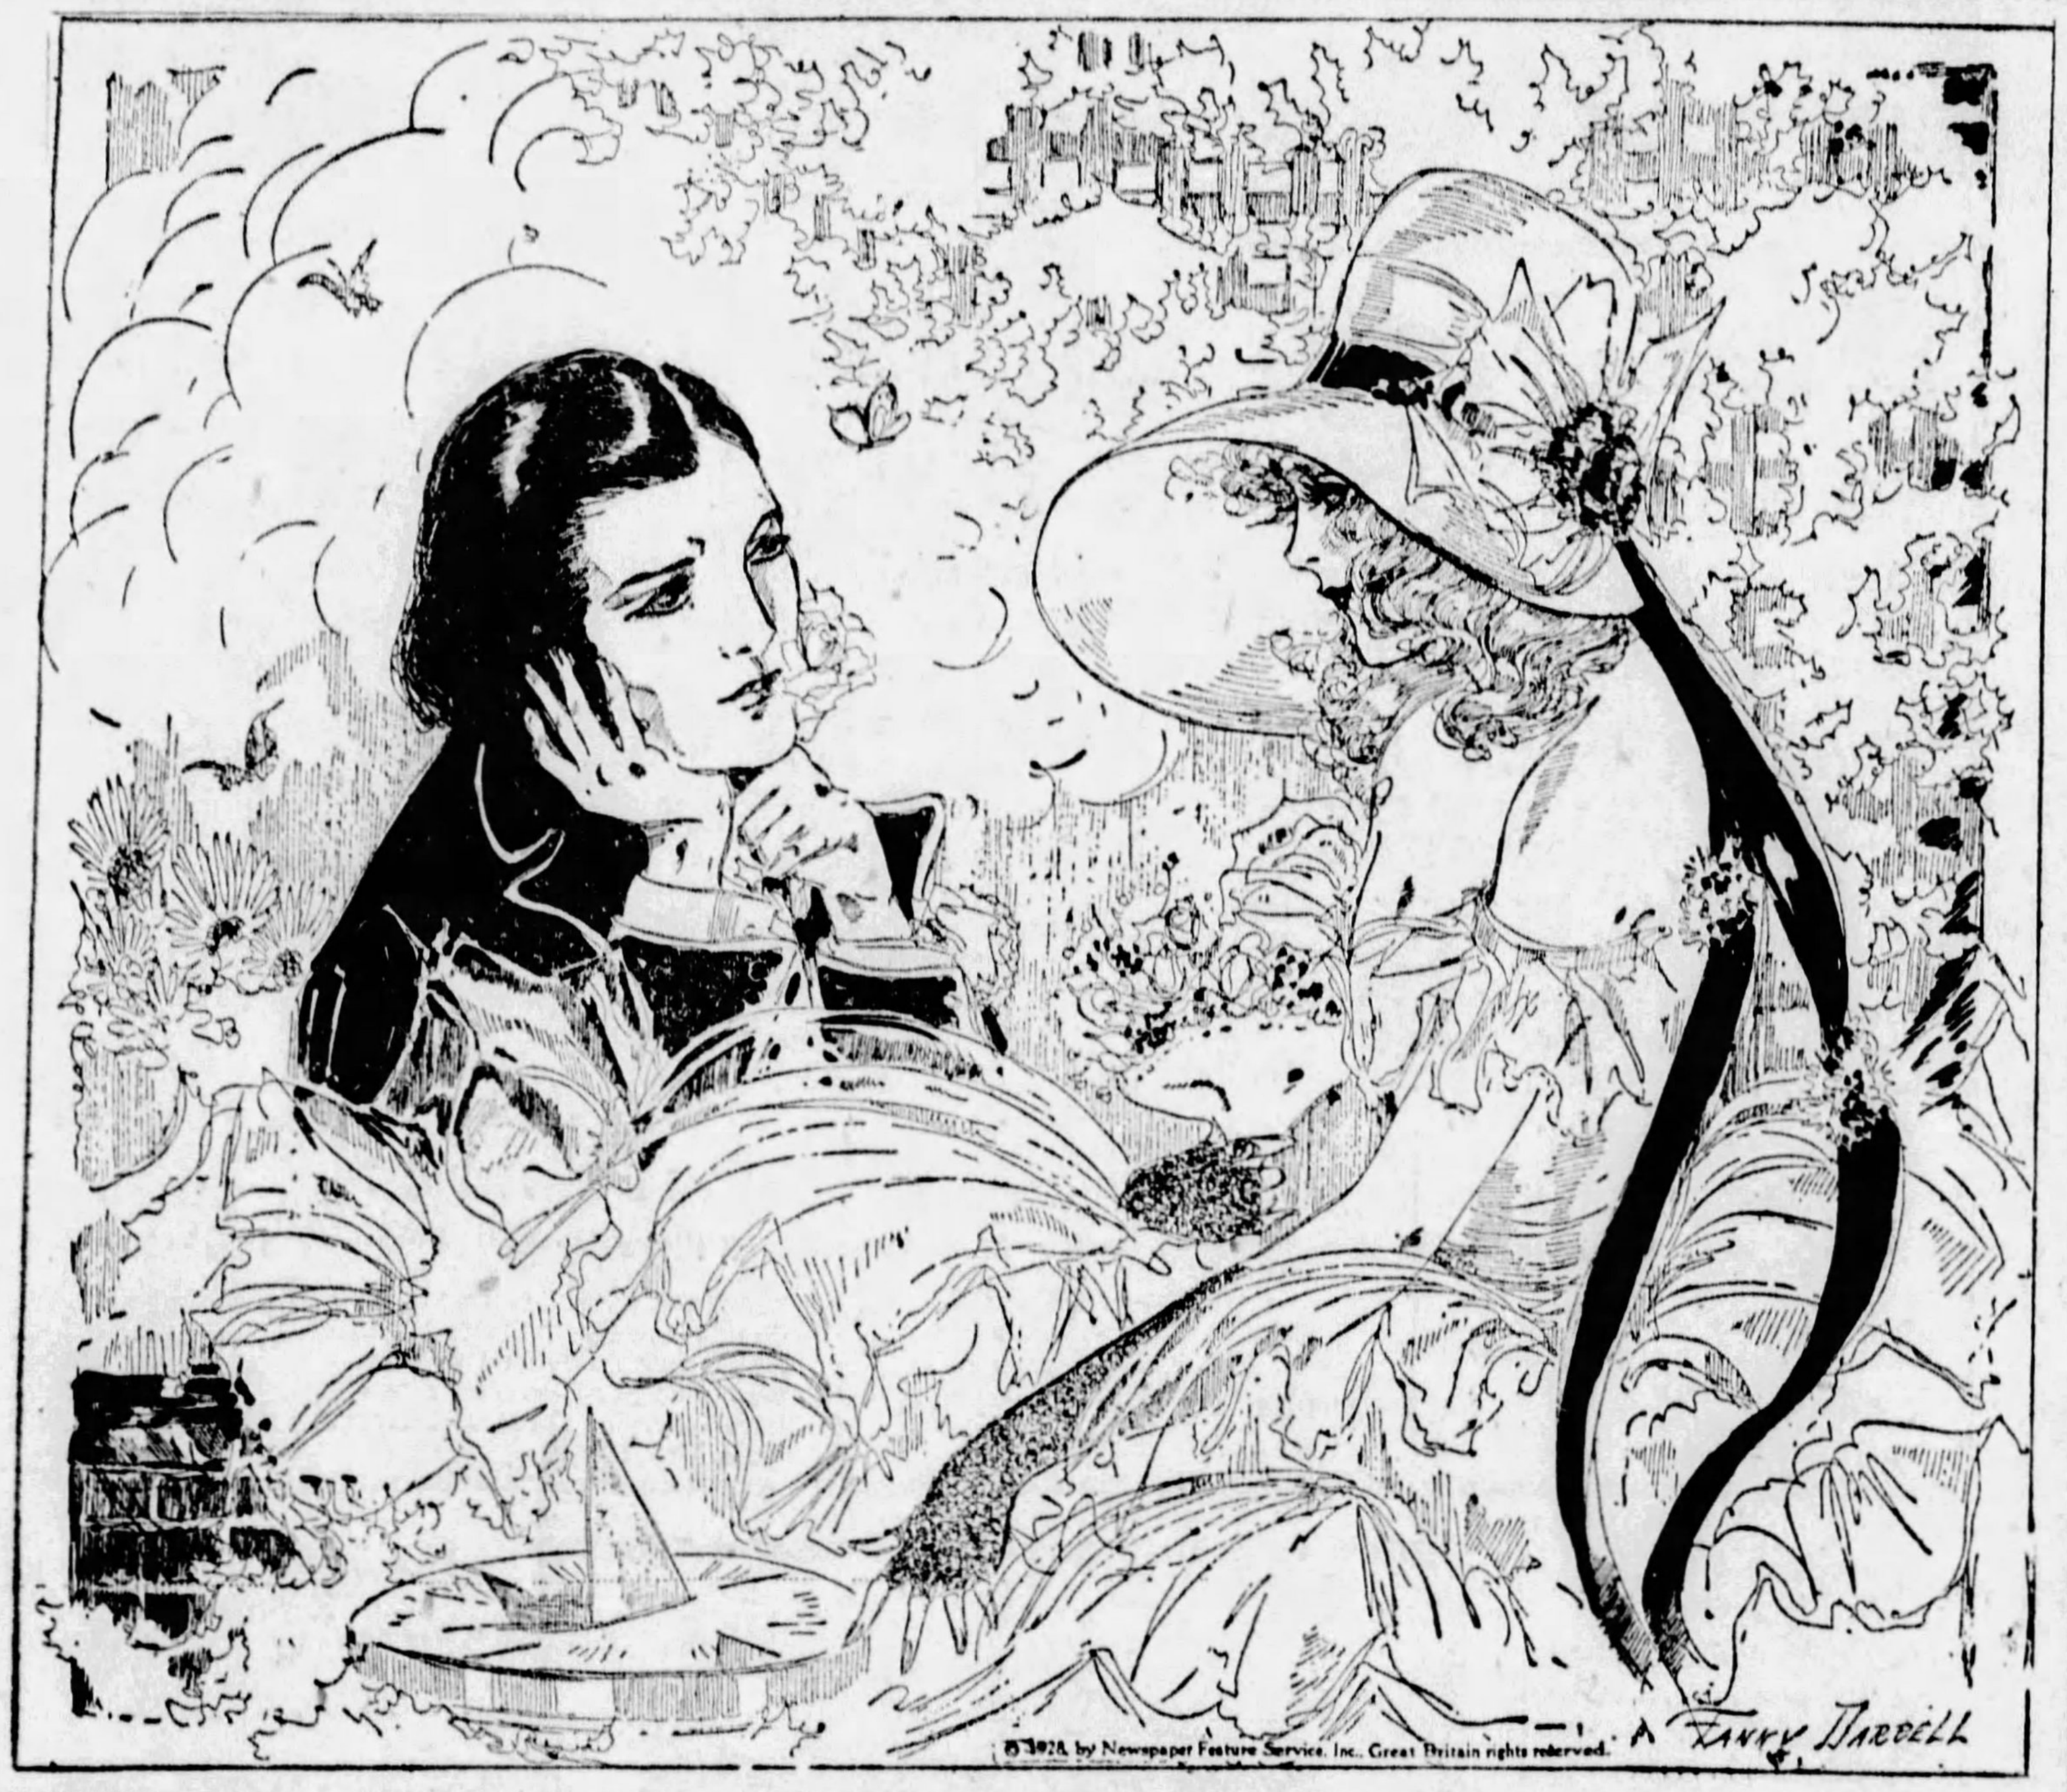
The Pleasant Way to Reduce

An Old-Fashioned Garden -:- -:- By Fanny Darrell.



© 1928, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.
FANNY DARRELL

IS THERE anything lovelier in the world than an old-fashioned garden? With its rows of nodding hollyhocks, its tangled wealth of rose bushes, its borders of mignonette and sweet elysium, its quaint arbors flaunting gay awnings of morning glories and honeysuckle, with here and there an impudent climbing red rose bush winking gaily through the maze of color. Everything running riot into a generous pageant of color.

Yet its gay charm was an ideal setting for the romance which flourished in its midst. The peace and beauty of it all found an echoing response in the heart of the belle and her beau who sought the shaded depths of this haven to "find the hour" on the old-fashioned sun dial.

And there it was that their greatest of all hours were spent. When the old, old story was whispered to the nodding approval of the inhabitants of this old-fashioned garden, and they sang a glad accompaniment to this love which found its greatest moment of happiness here in their midst.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Demands an Explanation From Madge

NOTHING so bolsters one's backbone in a controversy as a secret sense of injury done you by an opponent. If I had not had the sudden glimpse of Edith Fairfax's picture and its written message, I should have come to the interview with Dicky concerning my tutoring of Eleanor Lincoln in a mood softened by my realization that the embers of my love for him were not ashes but glowing coals, and also tempered by Lillian's declaration that Dicky still loved me and undoubtedly would give up sketching Eleanor Lincoln if I asked him to do so—something of course which I never could even think of doing.

But the sight of the picture, though I now had no time to consider its significance, had killed all emotional reaction toward my husband, at the same time that it had stiffened my resolution to yield nothing to him in the coming interview. As I walked toward the door at Dick's knock I flattered myself that I was absolutely composed in face and voice and that even my husband's keen eyes could not guess the storm which had been raning within me. I was thankful that I had been quick-witted enough to have Lillian return Edith's photograph to Dicky as if she had found it. I knew that she had given him no inkling that I had seen it, and his ignorance of the fact gave me additional advantage in the controversy between us.

I opened the door and stepped to one side as Dicky came in. He turned as soon as he crossed the threshold and closed the door, then faced me with a frown which he evidently meant to be a formidable one upon his face.

"Now," he said, "will you kindly tell me what this nonsense about teaching Eleanor Lincoln means?"

I forced a casual little smile to my lips and pushed a chair toward him, then sat down in the one nearest to me.

"Won't you sit down?" I asked courteously. "You'll be much more comfortable."

He gave a short ugly little laugh as he twirled the chair around and rested his hands upon its back.

"So that's your role, is it?" he said unpleasantly, "Lady Vere de Vere discussing a question academically and with perfect breeding. Nothing doing, old dear. We're going to get down to brass nails in this thing and that pronto. I asked you what this nonsense about teaching Eleanor Lincoln meant and I expect an answer."

"I haven't refused to give you one," I said sweetly, "but I am afraid it won't be one which you will like. The matter is very simple. Miss Lincoln wishes to become a stage star under Mr. Veritzen's direction and he has promised that he will further her ambitions."

Dicky was so astonished that for a second he forgot his rancor.

"What's that?" he ejaculated. "You don't mean he promised to make a star of her, do you?"

His emphasis of the pronoun was so queer that I wondered if he meant that the young woman was hopeless in point of talent, or if perchance he shared the inexplicable attitude of Mr. Veritzen and young Mr. Jackson, which I could translate only as a theory that Miss Lincoln was too rare and fine a piece of femininity to be exhibited upon the public stage.

"At least she understands that he has made her such a promise," I returned quietly.

"Then he's kidding her," Dicky exploded, "just stringing her along until she gets sick of the idea herself, or until something happens which will prevent her from going on with the scheme."

Turkish Soup

One-half cup rice, one quart white stock, one tablespoon cream, two egg-yolks, salt and pepper.

Boil the rice and stock together for 20 minutes, or until the rice is soft. Press through a sieve, returning to the fire all that runs through. Add this slowly to the cream, into which have been stirred the beaten egg-yolks, and stir until it thickens but does not boil. Season and serve at once.

Makes Her Own Skin Bleach

Known for having one of the most beautiful skins in New York, Miss Mildred Ball, favorite artists' and photographers' model, recently made the statement that most of the New York models use a skin bleach of their own making.

According to Miss Ball, "we get three ounces of Orchard White from the druggist and add to it the juice of two lemons. This makes a full quarter pint of a perfectly harmless yet marvelously effective bleach. Applied to face, neck and arms, it bleaches any dark or discolored skin a beautiful rosy white. It also makes any rough or coarse skin soft and smooth. Many of the girls use it, too, for a tan and freckle bleach. Nothing like this wonderful mixture can be bought ready to use because it acts best when freshly prepared. The cost for several weeks' supply is only a few cents."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland, M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

There's a Right Way to Care for Baby's Nose

A WATCHFUL doctor observes many things which shock him. He knows that physical suffering will follow what the careless actor never gives a thought. For instance, many a mother cumbered about with household cares picks up her skirt and wipes the running nose of her snuffling child.

DR. COPELAND

Don't laugh. You have seen this done a hundred times.

The skirt has been swishing over the dusty, germ-littered sidewalks or basement floor. If there is any truth whatever in the germ theory of disease, there must be clinging to that skirt billions of disease-producing organisms.

But even if the dress isn't used in this way, it may be the family handkerchief instead. It isn't pleasant to talk about, but I am anxious to bring home to every mother the importance of proper care of baby's nose.

Many diseases are hand conveyed. It is probable that influenza, pneumonia and the common cold are transmitted in this manner.

Earache is due to an infection passing from the nose to the ear. If one child has an earache, due to the extension of an inflammation from the nose, you can readily see what the danger is. The nasal discharges from the sick child, if conveyed to another child, will cause a similar inflammation of the nose and, pretty soon earache will follow.

The common use of mother's handkerchief may be responsible for all the trouble. The eating utensils, drinking glasses, and all the toilet articles used by the sick child must never be used by another member of the family.

The baby's nose should be carefully cleaned by the freshly and thoroughly washed hands of the mother. If the child is too young to be taught to blow his nose on his own handkerchief, the nasal cavities must be cleaned out by the use of cotton.

Wrap a clean wooden toothpick, with a layer of cotton, making it about the thickness of a slate pencil. With this, carefully wipe out the nasal passages, going in only so far as you can see when the child is lying on his back in good light.

To soften any hard substance that cannot be readily removed, squeeze into the nose a bit of white vaseline. This should be squirted in from the tube in which the vaseline comes. After a few minutes the nose can be wiped with the cotton-covered toothpick.

If the child is "snuffly," or sleeps with his mouth open as a result of the cold, a little of the vaseline left in the nose will relieve the swelling and add to the comfort of the little patient.

Every "running nose" requires attention. Care of every acute condition will result frequently in speedy cure of the cold.

What has tooth paste to do with stockings?
QUITE A LITTLE

You can, for instance, get an extra pair or two with that $3.00 you save by using Listerine Tooth Paste. Its cost (25c a large tube) is about half of that of the ordinary dentifrice. And millions, both men and women, having proved that it cleans teeth whiter, are glad to take advantage of this economy.

Gleaming, Tartar-Free Teeth
With a Minimum of Brushing

LARGE TUBE 25c

THERE are many excellent dentifrices on the market selling at a trifle above or below 50c—but is it necessary to pay that much? Why not a first class dentifrice at 25c—scientifically correct for all types of teeth?

Believing this to be a sound price, we created Listerine Tooth Paste at 25c for a large tube. It is the result of more than fifty years' study of tooth and mouth troubles.

Now it is sweeping the country. Everywhere it is supplanting older and costlier dentifrices that accomplish no more.

Due to the presence of an amazing new and gentle polishing agent, it keeps teeth gleaming white with almost no brushing. Included in it are certain ingredients we have found most ideal in keeping the mouth and gums fresh and healthy.

Try Listerine Tooth Paste for a month. See how it makes teeth gleam. Note how good your mouth feels after using it. Compare it with any paste you have ever used and judge it by results alone. And then reflect that these results are costing you about half of what you would ordinarily pay. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

TRIO JAILED IN DRUG-KIDNAPING OF GIRL, 14

GIRL POINTS OUT TWO AS HER CAPTORS

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 10.—With three young men in jail, accused of abducting Lucille Custer, 14, Cadiz (O.) schoolgirl, police were continuing their search for three others alleged to have been implicated in the kidnaping and subsequent attack on their victim.

From a police automobile which made a tour of Steubenville, the girl pointed out places she had been taken by her captors, and the arrest of six young men followed. At the police station she pointed out Charles O'Malley, 21, and Cammel Lamatrice, 20, as two of her assailants. They were held without bail pending filing of charges today.

Paul Burke, 22, to whose home the girl said she had been taken, was held as a material witness.

The girl claims she was "stuck with a needle" as she left a movie theater half a square from her home, became bewildered and wandered away from the business section and was seized by several men.

The girl was kept a prisoner for 24 hours, then taken within a block of her home by a man who, she says, told her she would be killed if she told police any names.

The girl collapsed and was unconscious for hours.

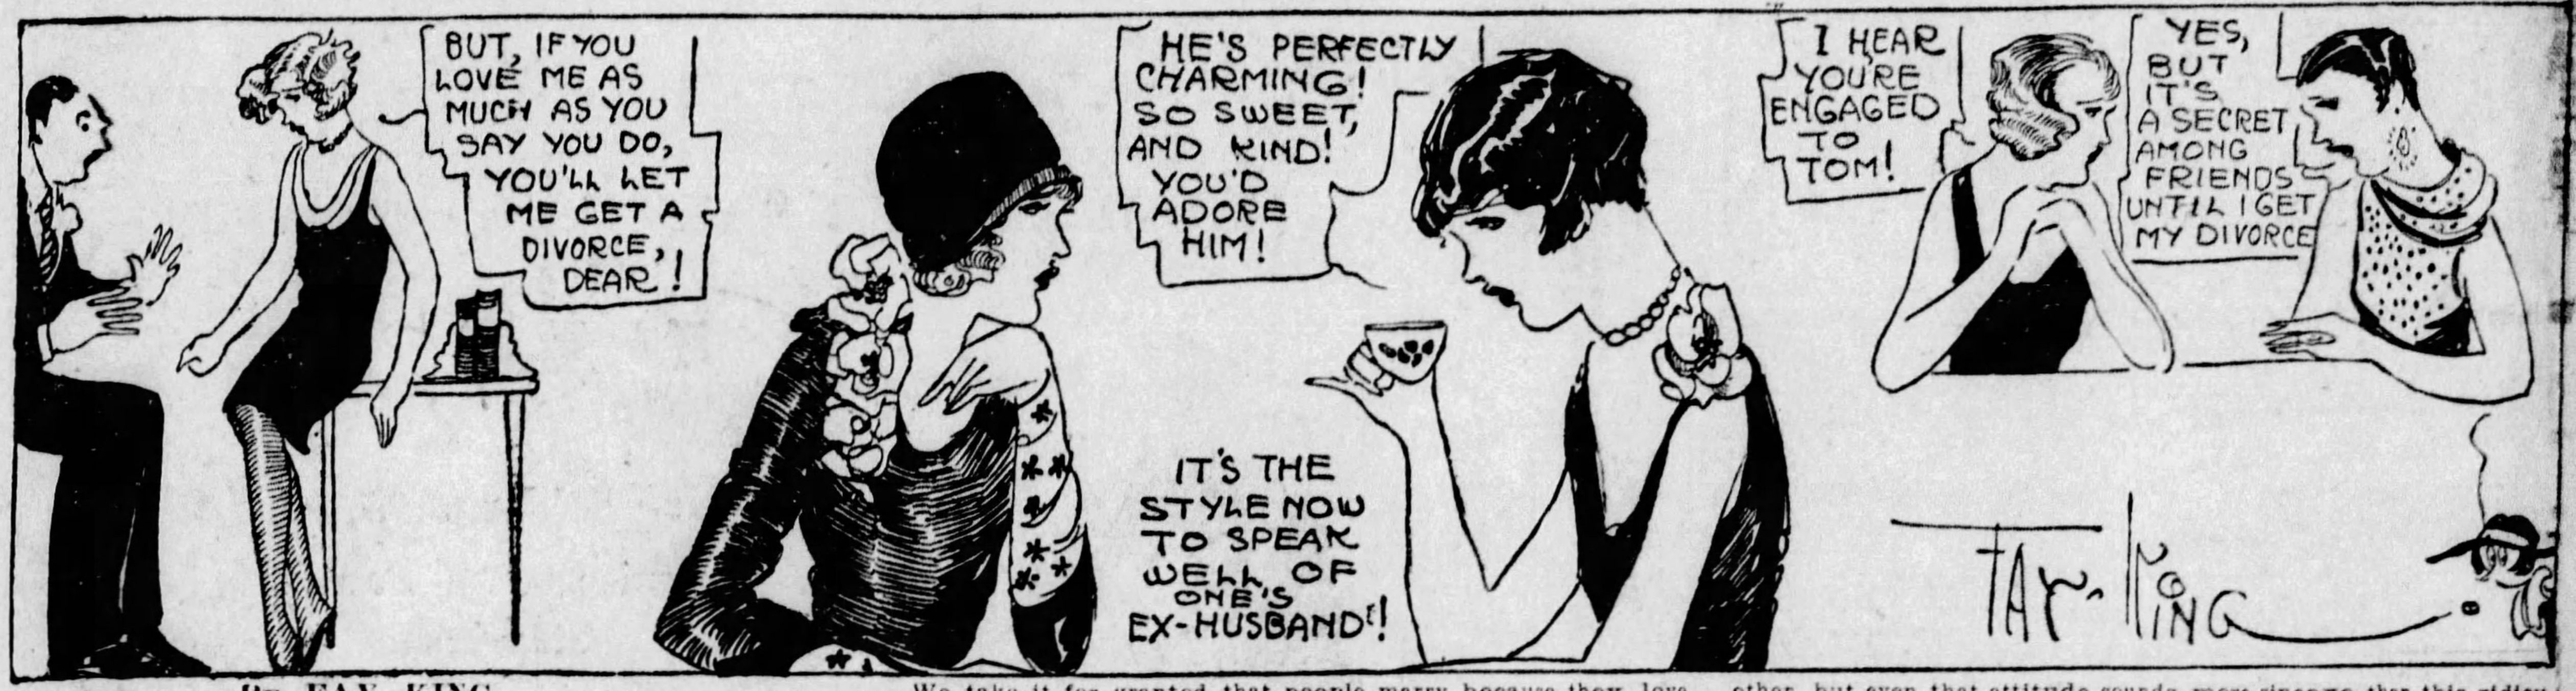
Fay King Waxes Sarcastic About Companionate Divorce



BUT, IF YOU LOVE ME AS MUCH AS YOU SAY YOU DO, YOU'LL LET ME GET A DIVORCE, DEAR!
HE'S PERFECTLY CHARMING! SO SWEET, AND KIND! YOU'D ADORE HIM!
IT'S THE STYLE NOW TO SPEAK WELL OF ONE'S EX-HUSBAND(S)!
I HEAR YOU'RE ENGAGED TO TOM!
YES, BUT IT'S A SECRET AMONG FRIENDS UNTIL I GET MY DIVORCE
FAY KING

By FAY KING

I'M AFRAID I am as old-fashioned about divorce as I am about marriage.

Companionate divorce seems as silly to me as companionate marriage.

We take it for granted that people marry because they love each other enough to marry.

We take it for granted that when people get a divorce it is because they have good reason to wish to be rid of each other.

Not that I think divorced people should go about knifing each other, but even that attitude sounds more sincere than this ridiculous post-divorce praise.

The time to show some of this belated appreciation of each other's good qualities is while they can make a success of their marriage, not a success of their divorce.

WOMAN'S DEATH LAID TO YOUTH HELD INSANE

NEW HAGERSTOWN, O., July 10.—Two days following the death of Miss Ida Hendricks, 46, at Twin City Hospital, Dennison, Homer Steiner, 16, Bowerston, was committed to the state feeble minded institution by Probate Judge B. W. Rowland, Cadiz.

Steiner, according to Sheriff John Quigley, seized the woman's arm while she was walking home from Bowerston. She never recovered from a collapse.

We've powerful microscopes that show live bacteria actually moving! We've a remarkable microscopic motion picture . . . more absorbing than a feature film . . . which magnifies active germs 57,000 times! We've a display of the refrigeration methods used from caveman days up to the present. HE SHOULD BE A FRIEND OF YOURS

Wouldn't you like to drive to the office in the morning and speak thusly to your favorite "traffic cop" when he beams upon you—as though nothing ever happened to make him angry!—passing: "Good morning, Officer Rafferty"—or else yell, "Hi, Teddy!" Well, The Sun-Telegraph's series "Traffic Cops" will tell you how. This fellow today may be found on the South Side, but don't spend the day hunting for him when The Sun-Telegraph will tell you his name tomorrow.

YESTERDAY'S "TRAFFIC COP" WAS FRANK KIEDROWSKI, SINGLE, 58 MAGDELINE STREET, SOUTH SIDE, WHO HAS SPENT 20 OF HIS 25 YEARS' DUTY AS A POLICEMAN AT THE CORNER OF TWELFTH AND CARSON STREETS.

BLAST HURLS $20,000 GEMS INTO STREET

While a squad of police stood guard, employes of the Burk Brothers jewelry store, 404 Smithfield street, this morning were searching for part of $20,000 worth of jewelry blown into the street late yesterday by a mysterious explosion in the basement of the establishment. Fire following the blast caused damage estimated at $500. Only a part of the jewels were recovered yesterday.

The explosion tore out the front of the store and fired the first floor of the building. Immediately upon arriving, police formed a line about the debris in the street and kept back pedestrians. All during the night the curious were kept moving. Firemen experienced much difficulty in keeping the flames from spreading to upper floors.

Officials of the firm were unable to give any cause for the explosion. They were forced to the rear of the store by the flames that engulfed the store following the fire. Deputy Fire Chief George Spahr said that it is possible the blast had been caused by the sun striking the windows and igniting celluloid used in the optical department.

From the moment the automobiles carrying the first girl to make a trans-Atlantic flight her mother, sister, Mayor Edward H. Trouble Encountered in Getting Equipment To Halifax

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Commander Byrd first trained for a seafaring profession before taking to aviation. He has explained how a gymnasium accident ruined his plans and later how he begged before he was given a chance as a flyer. He described the dangers of experimental or pioneering flying and the crash of the America. He explains why so many tragedies occurred in the early days of aviation. During the war he wanted to make an airplane flight across the Atlantic.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Long Flight Dream Shattered

CHAPTER IX.

A FINAL bit of difficulty came when I tried to start my equipment moving northward. The railways were taxed to their utmost just to carry routine freight.

And though military supplies were supposed to have precedence, the supplies were about three months ahead of the unhappy railroad officials. Usual management had given way to a special wartime control.

As a result we had some hot tussles before we were finally able to land our planes, engines, repair equipment and several carloads of other gear at our destination, Halifax.

The site that the Canadians assigned to us for our station was about eight miles across the Bay. This meant that we had to resort to all sorts of expedients to get into commission quickly. I had a natural desire to be efficient in the task.

I have always believed in doing things quickly. But what was really driving me was the secret fear that the NC-1 flight, which I still counted on, might be delayed by some dilatoriness on our part.

Though at first we were only two officers and eight men, all told, we worked night and day to go into commission. We floated the wingless bodies of our planes across the water to their new home.

We transformed our bare plot of ground on the beach to a hustling camp. As we had no hauling trucks for our heavy flying boats we pried them up on poles and rolled them onto the beach. I have never seen men work harder than that handful of men did. Thanks to them in three days we hoisted the American flag over our station and went into commission as a war unit.

Borrowed Ammunition

However, we could not start operations against the enemy for the good and simple reason that we had no ammunition. Our airplane bombs had been lost in the shuffle somewhere between Halifax and Washington. Baffled but determined, we borrowed some depth charges from the men-of-war in the vicinity. These charges were used by surface vessels against submarines. They were stowed on carefully built racks on deck and fitted with special depth devices for exploding them below the surface of the water.

They were not designed for the rough usage of airplane work; and altogether unsuited to our use. We were all lucky not to have been blown up during the period we so rashly resorted to so temperamental a form of weapon.

Soon officers and men began arriving by dozens. While we were putting up our tents, Lieut. Donahue, of the Coast Guard, was digging in at Sydney. Under my direction he started a station similar to the one at Halifax. Wild rumors soon began to pass between the two groups of men.

If a bad rain flooded one crowd out the others felt immensely superior for having made their camp better. No plane of the enemy was ever so carefully scrutinized as was one of either group when met by one from the other station. Condition of machine, tone of engine, apparel of pilot, every detail was taken in and later reported at the home mess for comparison.

Parachute Practice

A few weeks later our air detachment was added to by several kite balloons. These were elliptical-shaped gas bags with basket hanging underneath. The plan was to keep them aloft all day in order that the neighboring waters might be watched for submarines. The Canadians provided a base ship for them so that they could patrol for submarines at sea.

Part of the balloon routine was parachute jumping by the officers. This was a new practice in those days; and the parachutes were still in an experimental state.

I remember the first jump we pulled off. The balloon was floating quietly at the end of its tether about 1,000 feet in the air. Beyond it the overcast sky cast a gray gloom over the earth. A little silent group of observers stood on the beach staring at the gently swaying basket just below its gas bag.

Just then a light breeze fanned my cheek. "Better hurry," muttered some one. "Southwest wind picking up." There was a touch of nervousness in the words that made me secretly glad that someone else shared my own anxiety. I knew that in a sense every jump was an experiment, and every experiment a risk greater than average airplane flight.

Safe Descent

Moreover, each jump was made under my orders, which, I think, made me unduly apprehensive.

The head that showed above the basket's rim, high above us, suddenly seemed to thicken. By this we knew that the balloonist was clambering overboard. In these days of frequent jumping it is difficult to realize the shudder we all felt when a black form shot downwards, dragging with it what looked like a streamer of rag.

"Good!" burst out someone involuntarily when the 'chute suddenly spread and billowed, then opened full and checked the jumper into a comfortably slow descent.

We soon were getting all the thrills and excitement we wanted in our own business. The highlands and cliffs of Nova Scotia made the air rough and the fogs kept it thick. Changes were sudden and violent. I remember going up one morning in bright sunshine.

We were about 20 miles out to sea when I noticed a black cloud in the southern sector. Before I could get back to the station I was fighting a half gale that whipped the bay into a running sea. Just before I landed a wall of fog swept over the lower arm of the harbor. I slipped down not two minutes too soon.

"Submarine" Excitement

One day a submarine was reported 30 miles southeast of the entrance of Halifax Harbor. We immediately got our American squadron underway, consisting of our two planes and a torpedo-boat which had been sent to work with us.

Hinton and I were in the pilot seats of our machine with an aviation mechanic forward. We had two bombs aboard, and were full of hope we would see some action.

About the time the land dropped over the horizon behind us we suddenly missed the other plane. We circled back and discovered her floating on the surface of the sea.

So we flew back to the torpedo-boat and made signals of distress, following them by short flights in the direction of the disabled plane. When the small vessel found the latter we continued after the enemy.

At about the spot where the sub had been reported we sighted what appeared to be a periscope. Almost cheering for joy that we were going into action we banked and swooped downward.

Just as we were about to release a bomb we saw that the periscope was nothing but a vertical floating spar of some sort.

Given Great Dane

On the way back we passed the torpedo-boat with our other machine in tow. The plane's propeller had burst, cutting a big hole in her bottom and severing the king post which supported her tail. She was about to sink when the boat took her crew off.

Aboard her were Lieut. Dietrich and Kerr, a Navy boatswain, both killed in air accidents soon after the war.

Our personnel was added to one morning when one of my men appeared at my tent with an enormous Great Dane. I think the animal was the largest dog of any sort I have ever seen. "Followed me into the boat," explained the man, "and I thought you might like him, sir."

"Like him well enough," I replied truthfully, "but he must have a master somewhere."

I advertised in the Halifax papers. Two days later the owner appeared. By that time the dog had attached himself to me, and the men had incongruously named him "Violet."

If any beast was ever farther from that fragile flower it was this splendid creature. I was much pleased when my crowd, who had learned how attached I had become to Violet, chipped in together and persuaded the owner to sell him to them for me.

When the terrible flu epidemic began sweeping through the surrounding country I made all hands take their food from the central kitchen and eat it in their tents.

Once a day I had those who were not on flying duty line up in front of the medical tent and gargle with a disinfectant. Violet used to get in line and gargle along with his shipmates. As a result of this care, I think, we did not have a single death from the dread disease.

Canadians Hospitable

I cannot pass over this brief account of those long months without making some mention of the friendship that grew up so easily between us and the Canadians.

I had been told that up to the World War the people of Halifax annually celebrated the burning of Washington by the British in 1813 and to look out for anti-American feeling. But never could any people in the world be more tolerant, helpful, cordial and hospitable than were our Canadian neighbors of 1918.

It was there I learned the great truth that knowledge makes for understanding and tolerance.

My relations with those under me were also of the most pleasant order. Duty up there on that forbidding coast, far from ordinary comforts and conveniences, continually forced to risk our lives in uncertain flying conditions, was not conductive to domestic peace.

Yet during all the months we were there there was not a single court-martial proceeding sent to Washington, and almost without exception the men were later demobilized with spotless records. Indeed, the spirit among the gang was so good that as a rule when one of the number would break the regulations he would be punished by his shipmates, and so save me the trouble.

Meanwhile with fading hopes Hinton and I continued to work on the trans-Atlantic flight problem. We could not understand the silence of Washington on the subject.

At every mail, at every dispatch blank that was handed me, I braced myself for the great news that the NC-1 was at last ready to start. But always I was disappointed. Storms were getting more and more frequent. Days were growing shorter. Temperature was slowly falling towards the inevitable zero. But we two deluded young chumps clung to the belief that if the big flying boat would only show up we would be capable of taking her safely to the Azores and thence to France.

We made some headway with the sextant with which to take an altitude of the sun and stars from an airplane at sea.

We thought the problem could be solved by using the bubble level glass to replace the sea horizon which is used in taking sights aboard ship. We actually tried a sextant so fitted by an Englishman, Commander Walker, and achieved some success.

I spent hours plotting our course on the chart. I studied weights and food requirements and clothing. I figured out what would be our course of action if we were forced into the sea before reaching the islands.

I worked out a very light first aid kit. Altogether I was in every way prepared to fly the Atlantic: companion pilot, fuel, food, clothing, instruments.

Armistic Kills Dream

And every minute of the time Gen. Pershing and his armies were doing their level best to wreck my plan. On November 11, 1918, they succeeded. The armistice was declared.

I was ordered to turn my station over to the Canadians and return to Washington. It was great—wonderful that there would be no more bloodshed. After my first shock of bitter disappointment I realized I must forget my insignificant self and be glad of that.

But personally I had failed. The biggest war we could ever have was over, and I felt that I hadn't done my share. We had danger enough—probably had killed as big a percentage flying as had been lost in the front line trenches.

But my big plan for a trans-Atlantic flight had evaporated; there was no longer need for the NC-1 in Europe; money wouldn't be forthcoming; and I felt that the attendant risk would not be permitted now that peace had come.

I sent my men and plane south. It was not so easy to cut loose from those great shipmates. I took Violet with me and left my dead hopes behind me.

As Peary once said:

"Fortunately I did not know that Fate was even then clenching her fist for yet another crushing blow."

Be that as it may I don't believe in waiting for opportunity to knock at the door, and it was and still is my theory that if one sticks at it hard enough and long enough he will at last find the key to the door of success.

Will Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 10.

This foot runner, Paddock, certainly is a professional as far as the Amateur Association is concerned. They have been running him all over America to raise funds to send over runners that nobody would pay to see run.

It's unfortunate for Paddock that America don't share in the gate receipts in Holland, if they did, our association would rush him over.

He was an amateur when he was running for the same money, but to go to Europe and run for nothing he is a professional.

Verna Is With Scarface And Bob Realizes He Is in Love With Her

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The body of Tom Kingsley is picked up by Capt. "Scarface" Sweeney and his mate, Marlow, off Singapore. Tom's brother, Robert, also an old "sea dog," is notified of the death and receives articles found on the corpse. Among these are two small but handsomely carved Ivory Idols. Robert Kingsley has good reason to believe that Hsi Yan, an ancient enemy, has returned after 30 years to seek vengeance. The Idols are stolen and Young Bob starts out to recover them. Bob finds Java Dick in Singapore, who promises his help in solving the mystery. The Idol contains the key to a great fortune. Bob hears the story of Hsi Yan's fight with his and receives the other Idol which containus the key to the cypher. Bob translates the cypher and then destroys it. Capt. Scarface makes his appearance on the scene and tells Bob the story of his uncle's death.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"NO, they didn't, and even if they had"—Captain Scarface indulged suddenly in a broad grin—"I ain't sure but what I'd have brought her anyhow! But I'll tell you something, son, that you ought to have found out for yourself—that young lady's got winning ways!

"All the Crowleys told me was that you had brought Miss Lyle to stay with them, and had gone on to Singapore. And they wouldn't have told me that if I hadn't seen her in the house, and they sort of had to introduce me. There wasn't any reason why they should tell me anything. I never knew them before, and they never knew me. They had no call to trust me with confidences just because I said I was a friend of old Tom. They were pretty tight-mouthed, figuring, I take it, to keep your affairs to themselves; but they said I'd find you in Singapore if I wanted to see you. Son, I wasn't more'n twenty-four hours behind you in reaching Kalawa, and you can figure for yourself from that how long it took me to make up my mind to follow you here to Singapore. So back I went to the Iola, and, as I said, just as I was getting under way, off Miss Lyle comes. She said she had realized that she had made a great mistake in landing at Kalawa at all, and—"

"She said that!" Bob Kingsley flung out ironically.

"Yes, she did!" Captain Scarface retorted definantly. "And, boy—you damn fool!—I wish I was thirty years younger! Likewise, she said it was imperative that she got to Singapore without another hour's loss of time. She didn't say why, except that it meant everything to her that—"

"The reason is fairly obvious," Bob Kingsley interrupted again, but this time with a wry smile. "To charge Black Bob Kingsley with the murder of Colonel Robert Lyle."

"Listen, lad," said Captain Scarface, and screwed up his features into a friendly scowl, "I called you names a minute ago, but they ain't hard enough. Hell's bells and a barrel of monkeys, you don't know anything about women! And least of all about handling 'em; Ten days you had her aboard this schooner here. And what did you do? Bah! Sure, I heard her story coming over from Kalawa—every last word of it except why she wanted to get here so mighty bad. She was mum about that. But it wasn't to make any charge against you. She could have written one of those letters you were talking about, without leaving Kalawa, and I'd have brought it along without knowing the difference, if that was what she was after. No, son, it ain't nothing like that. I ain't taking all the credit to myself, for I guess she heard a lot about you in Kalawa that opened her eyes; but she heard a lot more from an old fool called Scarface Sweeney, and kind of liked the sound of it too, I fancy, on the run over in the Iola. She ain't so set as she was on calling Black Bob Kingsley a murderer." Captain Scarface began to chuckle. "What was that yarn about the lifeboat on the Monotah?"

"Shut up!" said Bob Kingsley savagely; and then eagerly: "Do you mean all this—literally?"

"Aye, lad, I mean it," replied Captain Scarface seriously. "If you're ever accused of murdering Colonel Lyle, it won't be by his sister."

For a moment Bob Kingsley was silent. When he spoke again his voice was husky.

"Where is she now?" he asked.

"At her home, I suppose, wherever that may be in Singapore," Captain Scarface answered. "I put her ashore before coming over to you. She wouldn't have me go any farther with her."

Again Bob Kingsley was silent for a moment; and then, abruptly:

"How did you happen to go to Kalawa in the first place?"

"Made up my mind I was going to from the time I picked up Tom dead in that boat, and figured he'd been murdered," Captain Scarface replied, a rasp creeping into his voice. "The cruise I was on after I touched at Momboa and left the letter and things with Hawk Griswold didn't last as long as I'd counted on, and I put in at Kalawa on the way back. I wanted to get what information I could first hand—but I didn't get much. And coming back to Crowley, the only reason I went to see him at all was because I heard on landing that he was the first white man on the scene at Tom's house after the attack upon it."

"I see" said Bob Kingsley.

"Well, that's about all I've got to tell." Captain Scarface squinted at the setting sun—and then glanced questioningly at Bob Kingsley. "There ain't much daylight left," he observed, "and if I'm to pull out, I'd better be going."

Bob Kingsley's hand went to the other's shoulder.

"Yes," he agreed; "we've about got to the bottom of our yarns, and I think you ought to push off at once—for even with good weather it'll take you somewhere around four days to make Luala."

Captain Scarface nodded—and together they walked to the schooner's rail.

"North End. One-half mile from creek to crumbled hillside. Due west 50 paces from burnt tree," said Captain Scarface in a lowered voice. "Is that it?"

"That's it," said Bob Kingsley. "But perhaps I'd better write it down for you?"

"'Tain't necessary," said Captain Scarface. "I just wanted to be certain I'd got it straight."

"That's it," repeated Bob Kingsley.

Capt. Scarface swung himself half over the rail—and paused.

"I ain't sure I'm doing right about this—going off and leaving you here," he muttered dubiously.

"You're doing the one thing I'd rather you'd do than any other," declared Bob Kingsley earnestly; "the one thing it would help a lot to know was all right if everything else went wrong. And on top of that, as I told you, I don't see where you could do a bit of good here."

"Right you are, then!" assented Capt. Scarface, though the dubious note still lingered in his voice. "I ain't going to argue it over again." He lowered himself into his waiting dinghy. "But you take care of yourself, lad! Them yellow rats are tricky, and they can bite deep."

"I will!" promised Bob Kingsley grimly; and then almost to himself: "I've a lot more reason to want to live now than I had before."

"What d'ye say?" inquired Capt. Scarface.

"I said you needn't worry about me looking out for my own hide," smiled Bob Kingsley. "So long! Good luck!"

The boat was pulling away from the schooner's side.

"Don't you crowd on too much sail, lad!" bawled Capt. Scarface. "I'm sore disappointed now; but I ain't going to be gone long, and I'm still counting on getting in on the showdown!"

Bob Kingsley waved his hand.

"Right-o!" he shouted back.

He watched the boat disappear amongst the shipping; and then, turning away from the rail, he began to pace up and down the deck, back and forth—interminably.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

VERNA! He felt the blood burning in his face. It was quite easily understood how she had got aboard Capt. Scarface's schooner unknown to the Crowleys, as she had been in no sense a prisoner at Kalawa; though why she had done so, and why she was so desperately eager to reach Singapore, since it was no longer for the purpose of bringing him to account for her brother's death, was an entirely different question, and one to which he had no answer. But neither of these things mattered now in comparison with something that was so infinitely greater to him that everything else sank into insignificance. Her changed attitude toward him! How much did it mean? How much dared he hope?

F'r instance I told ARab and NOIsy today that their JOKE about Mr. ZOOLich, the new MAN in town, was POSitively NAUSeous it was so FEEBle, but that being an AWfully sweet GIRL with a kind HEART I felt I ought to forGIVE them and we might as well let BYgones be BYgones or something—can you BEAR it, my dear? Well, ANYways, you should have SEEN their exPRESsions at this point, my dear! I mean they were practicably WHIFfling and BURBling with JOY, and we sort of SKIPPED vaguely round, arm in ARM, like the PILgrim's chorus from the SWISS family ROBinson or something, my dear, ARab and NOIsy FIRMly conVINCED that I LOOKED upon them at this point as the world's most atTRACtive MEN, when as a matter of FACT, my dear, I don't give a SNAP of my GARters for EITHer poisonous youth because I mean they BORE me to TEARS, do you know what I mean? Well, ANYways, my dear, their comPLAcence was ACtually MORE than I could BEAR, so I couldn't reSIST suggesting that maybe if there HAD REALly been a new MAN he might have turned out to be even MORE of a dumb DA-DA than THEY are, which I HONestly think reDUCED them to LOWest TERMS, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

"Joy of Living"

"Boys will be boys"—happy boys—only when they're healthy boys. And who wouldn't be both happy and healthy after breakfasts of Heinz Rice Flakes—the crispy, crunchy, new cereal food with a flavor like toasty nutmeats?

Those are breakfasts that start folks off right... And that keep them "right".

For, by a special Heinz process, Heinz Rice Flakes are naturally "laxatized" by the use of the natural roughage of the rice itself. This process was developed by Heinz. It is owned exclusively by Heinz. In no other cereal food can you get the precise laxative qualities of Heinz Rice Flakes. So gentle. So natural!

Grown-ups as well as youngsters like Heinz Rice Flakes for they add to the "Joy of Living" and the fun of good health.

Remove the Cause of Indigestion

Nine out of ten cases of indigestion are caused by harmful, excess stomach acid which sours and ferments the food, forms gas and induces pain. The only logical way to obtain relief is to remove the cause, and Bi-nesia does this instantly. Bi-nesia not only neutralizes the acid, but also heals and protects the acid-inflamed stomach lining. Thus normal, healthy stomach conditions are restored and natural, painless digestion follows. Pure, harmless Bi-nesia is sold by all druggists for only 50c for either a handy flask of 100 tablets or a large bottle of powder, and unless you get full relief in five minutes your money will be cheerfully refunded. Try Bi-nesia—it removes the cause of indigestion and gives quick, harmless relief.

INDIGESTION AND NEURITIS ENDED

Homestead Lady's Health Better Than in Years, Since Using Ten Herbs.

The success of the great natural medicine, Ten Herbs, is not confined to Pittsburgh alone, but has spread to all outlying towns and the entire countryside, where hundreds of men and women are ending stomach, liver and bowel disorders by using this new compound, according to reports received by the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this popular preparation.

MRS. MARY BICKERSTAFF

"Since using Ten Herbs, I am enjoying better health than I have for several years," was the statement of Mrs. Mary Bickerstaff, 255 West Ninth Avenue, Homestead, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs man. "Before taking your medicine, I had neuritis so badly that I could not raise either arm," Mrs. Bickerstaff continued. "My stomach was in bad condition. Gas would form and cause my heart to palpitate. I was bloated nearly all the time. I had to be careful what I ate, and could not eat apples at all. My nerves were unstrung, and I did not sleep well at night. I was also troubled with constipation, and at times could hardly do my housework.

"I read about Ten Herbs in the Pittsburgh papers and decided to give your medicine a trial. After using it awhile, neuritis has been relieved. I have free use of both arms and do not have the least trouble in doing all my housework. My stomach is in good condition and free of gas. I do not bloat any more. My appetite is very good, and I can eat almost anything—even apples—without being distressed. I can enjoy a good night's rest, as my nerves are strong. Constipation also has been relieved. I gladly recommend Ten Herbs to my friends and the public."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

"I had sore pimples on my face for a year. They were hard, large and red, and although I tried different remedies nothing seemed to help me. The pimples itched and burned and when I scratched them they would fester and scale over. They disfigured my face and I was ashamed to go anywhere.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. After using it a few days I noticed that it stopped the irritation so I purchased more, and in two months I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Elva M. Orr, Rt. 2, Elverson, Pa.

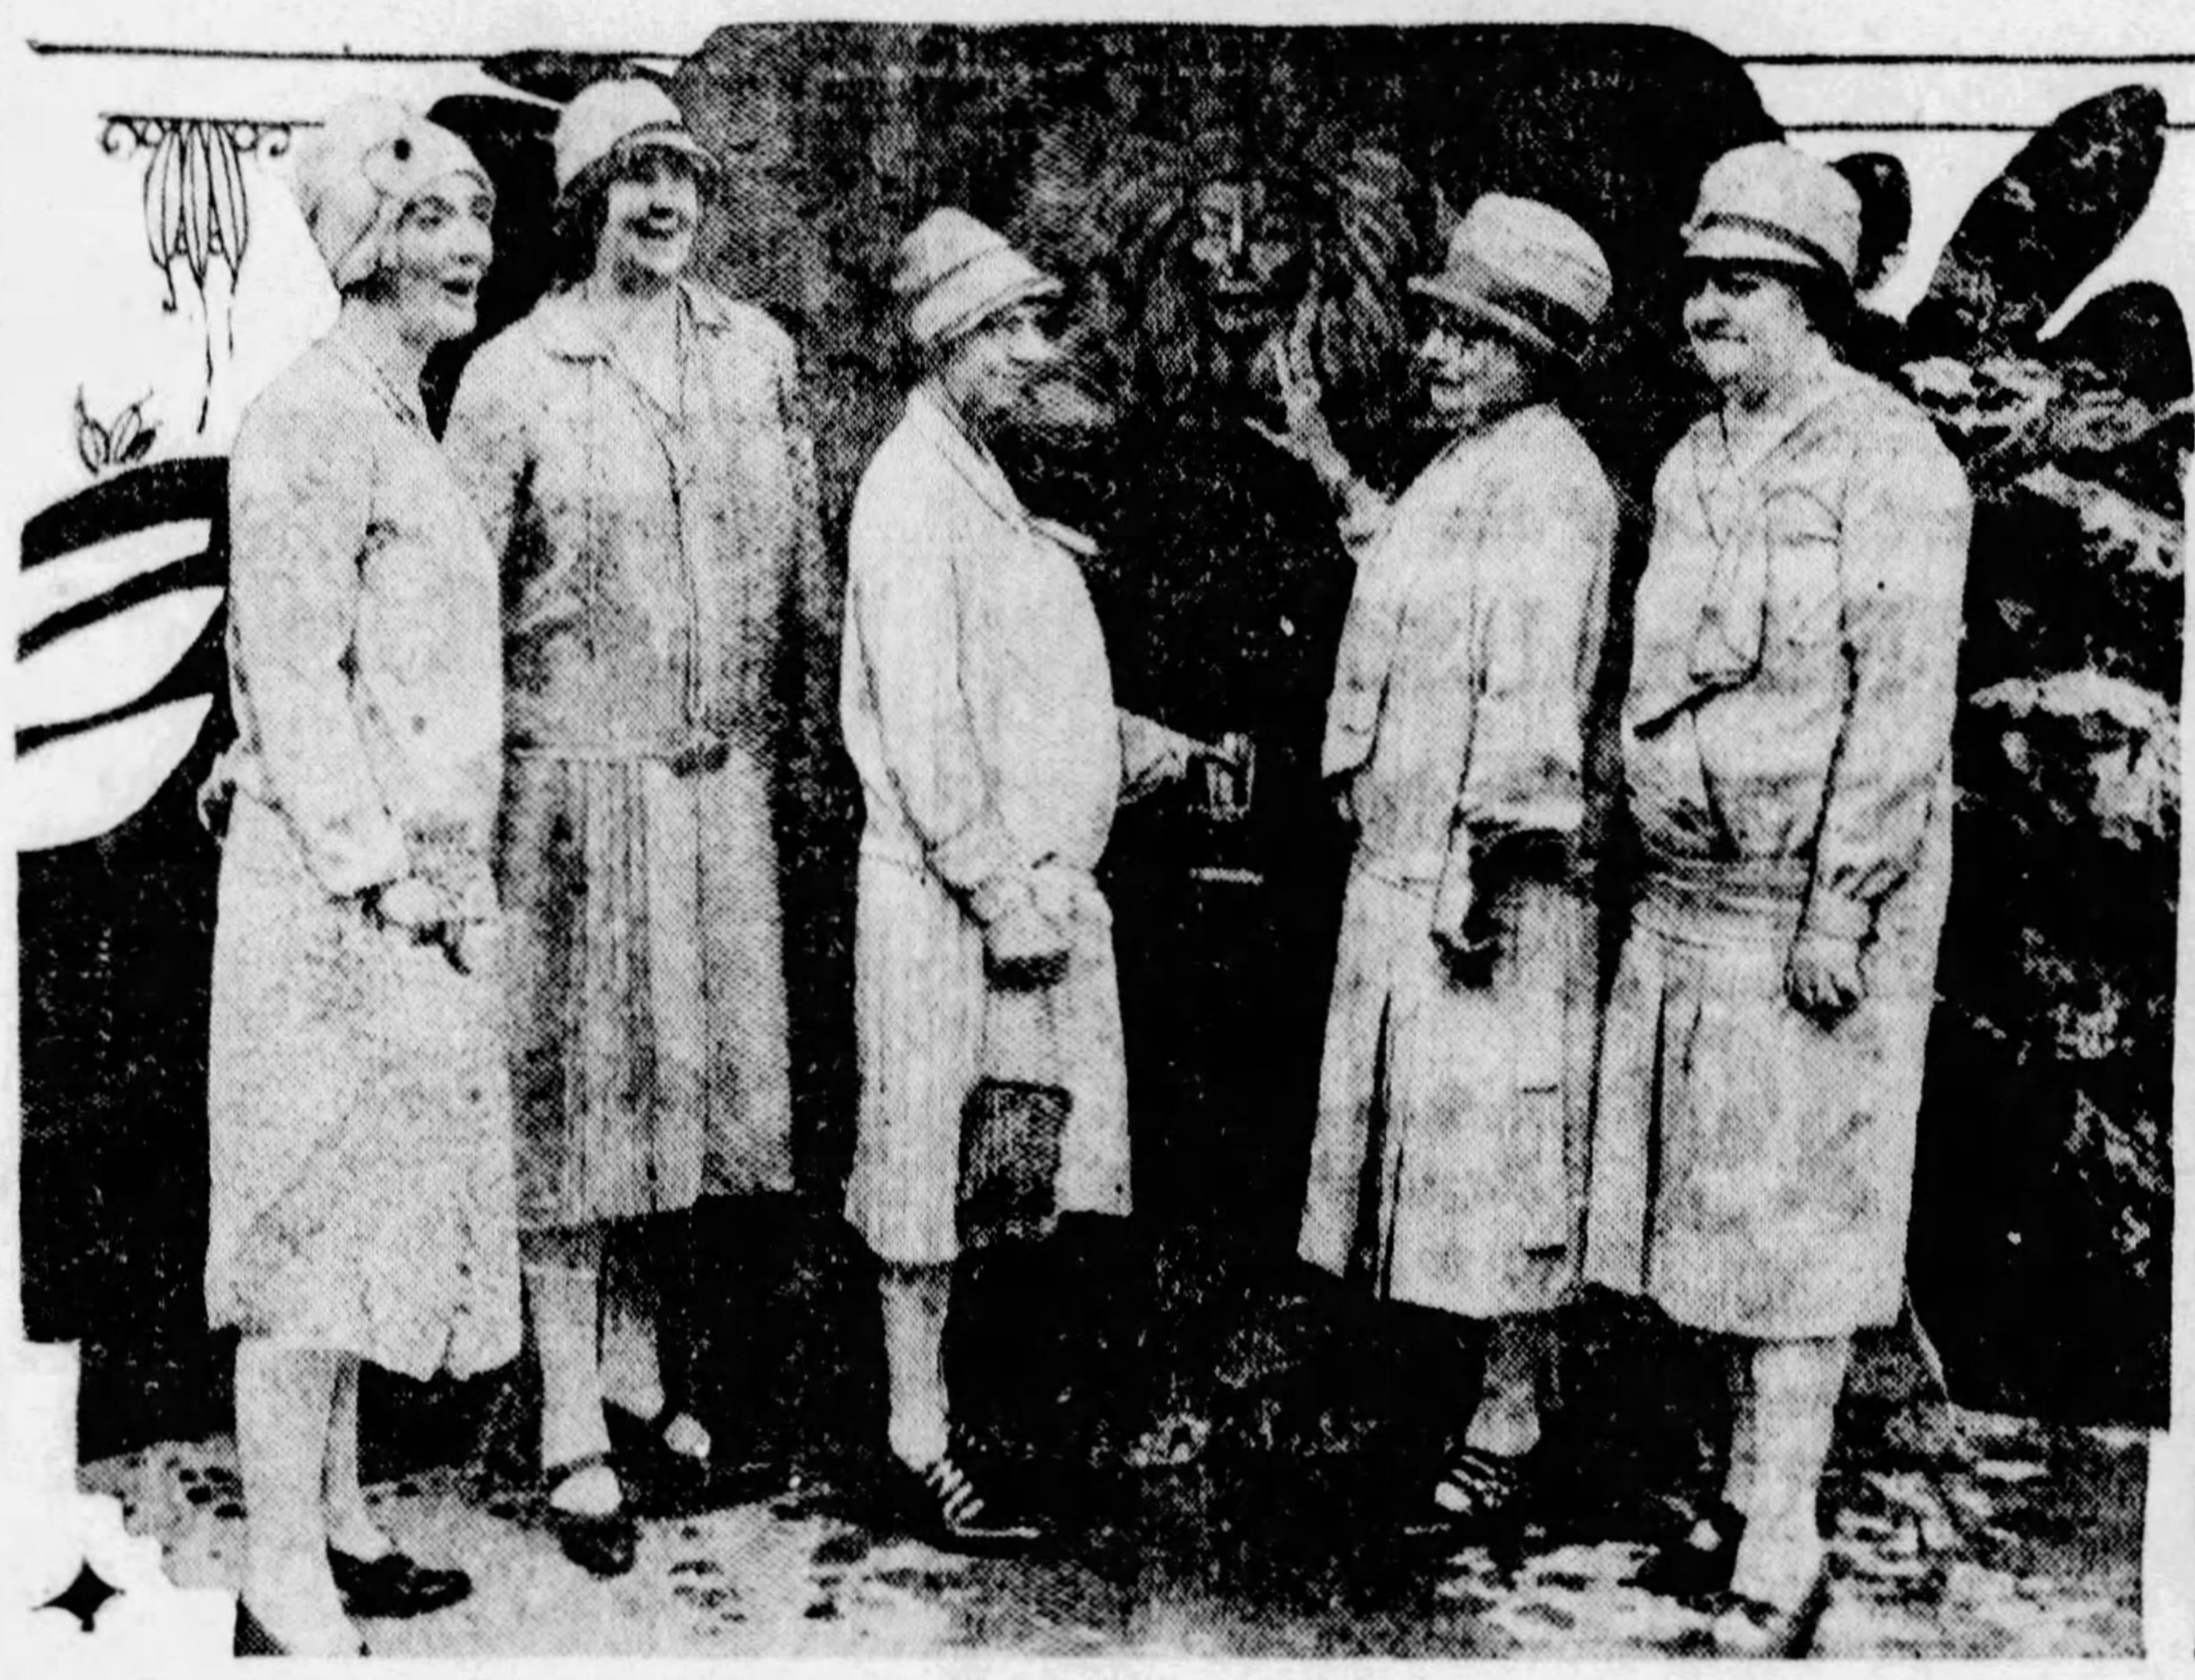
PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Plans for This Fall's Debbies Slow to Crystallize and But One Date Thus Far Is Chosen

HISTORICAL SOCIETY -:- WOMEN HOLD OUTING -:- SCHENLEY PARK



PICNIC

At the recent picnic of the Woman's Historical Society, Mrs. W. B. McConnell, Mrs. H. A. Calderwood, Mrs. I. K. Teal, Mrs. Jay Turner and Mrs. J. H. Huggans waited in line at the fountain.

PHOTOS BY THE SUN-TELEGRAPH.

COMMITTEE

The social committee for the Schenley Park outing included Mrs. W. F. Webb, Mrs. Frederick F. Kellogg, Mrs. William G. Zeigler, Mrs. George E. McKee and Mrs. Jane DeMain.

IN other years, debut plans for the coming season were announced long before mid-summer—announced so that the dates might be definitely fixed and any confusion obviated. I don't know just why, but apparently these arrangements are slow to crystalize this year, and so far just one date has been made known. That is, of course, Louise Evans', and she will come out at a tea dance in the University Club September 22.

Even one of the girls who was on last year's list and then decided to postpone her debut, may not make her bow this season. At least, her plans,—or perhaps I should say, her mother's plans,—are so nebulous that nothing definite can be announced until autumn. I refer to Elizabeth Stieren, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Stieren, of the Bellefield Dwellings.

Elizabeth, I understand, went abroad after school closed, on June 15, to be exact, and joined her sister, Josephine, in Paris. No doubt you remember that Josephine has been in Paris all winter, specializing in French at the Sorbonne. She had expected to come home in June, but instead, her sister crossed, and after spending a short time in Paris they went down to Madrid for a while. Later, I believe, they plan to tour through Spain, and will come back to the States early in September. Elizabeth will be a sophomore at Smith next winter, but she may, as other girls have done, make a debut either during the Thanksgiving or Christmas holidays. As I said before, nothing will be decided until the girls return from Europe.

ANOTHER young traveler abroad is Wenley Nelson, son of the John E. Nelsons, of Murtland avenue, who was graduated from Princeton in June. Immediately after commencement he sailed for Europe and in London he will be joined by Harris and Samuel Harbison, sons of the Ralph W. Harbisons, of Sewickley, who are embarking on the Majestic this week, having waited until their sister, Marjorie, was married.

While they are in London the young men will be entertained by Julian Street, I understand. After they leave England they plan to travel about on the continent and return home late in September.

ONE of the Sewickley social events of today was the buffet luncheon, which Mrs. DeWitt Nettleton, who has homes, you know, both in Sewickley and in Pinehurst, N. C., gave at the Allegheny Country Club. Mrs. Nettleton's honor guest was Mrs. Denise Garrett Browne, of Brookline, Mass., who, you may remember, was Miss Mary Gormley before she was married. She is a sister of Mrs. Stuart Robinson, of "The Barracks," Sewickley.

* * *

TUESDAY, July 24, is the date set by Sarah Frances Williams for her marriage to David Anderson Challis, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Challis, of Sewickley. The ceremony will be performed that afternoon in the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Albert C. Williams, in Glen Osborne. The Rev. E. L. Biddle, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Cortland, N. Y., will solemnize the marriage and the bride will be given away by her grandfather, Peter Seibert. Mrs. Charles N. Harwood, of Stamford, Conn., will be matron of honor and the bridal party will be completed by the best man, Chester Challis, the bridegroom's brother. After a short trip Mr. Challis and his bride will be at home in Sewickley.

MISS MARGUERITE THOMSON, of Aylesboro avenue, and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. George O. Reemsnyder, left yesterday by motor for Atlantic City where they will spend some time at the Chelsea.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. ALEXANDER WILLSON and their family heve left their home in Pasadena, Fla., and returned to Pittsburgh for the summer. They have taken the Frank Painter home at Shady avenue and Howe street.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. OTTO A. ZANGE, of Wayne avenue, McKees Rocks, will sail July 21 on the George Washington for Europe. They will visit Wales, England, France, Italy, Switzerland and Germany, sailing from Bremen on October 4 for home.

* * *

ANNOUNCEMENT has been received of the marriage of Miss Mary Gail Barnhart, daughter of Mrs. Pearl L. Barnhart, and William Reed Beardsley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reed Beardsley, of Briar Cliff road, which was solemnized June 30 in Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis, Mo. After August 1, Mr. and Mrs. Beardsley will be at home in Colorado Springs, Col.

THE marriage of Miss Elsie Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Rogers, of Monessen, and Edward Meeks, of Clarksburg, W. Va., was solemnized June 27 in the First Christian Church, Monessen, by the Rev. W. H. Weisheit. Miss Nellie Rogers was her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were another sister, Miss Hazel Rogers, and a cousin, Miss Gladys Beery. Carolyn Jane Hudson, of Sebring, Fla., and Doris Finley, of Monessen, were flower girls. Truman Lynch, of Clarksburg, was best man and the ushers included Byron Beery and David Whitsell. After a motor trip in the East, Mr. and Mrs. Meeks will make their home in Morgantown, W. Va. Both are graduates of West Virginia University, class of 1926.

THE annual boat ride of Allegheny Chapter No. 106, Order of the Eastern Star, will be held next Monday night on the Homer Smith. Mrs. Clara M. Truxel is worthy matron of the chapter. There will be cards and dancing.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM DAY WILSON, of Clarion, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Kathleen Moran Wilson, to Frank R. Gladden, of McDonald, at a tea given Saturday in the Wilson home.

CITY CLUB EXTENDED OTHER CITY PRIVILEGES

THE current issue of the Woman's City Club "Bulletin" calls attention to the reciprocal relations existing between the local City Club and those in various other cities. This is especially timely just now when so many members are out of town and will be glad to take advantage of the hospitality offered by other City Clubs. The Detroit City Club is now occupying its new home, attractively described as having a library, lecture hall and a swimming pool, 26 single bedrooms and 6 double bedrooms, all with private baths. Traveling westward, Pittsburgh members already have established themselves in the City Clubs of Kansas City, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Minneapolis, too, has a beautiful new clubhouse, where Pittsburgh's club has reciprocal relations. To the East the doors of the Boston clubhouse in Beacon street; Philadelphia's, in Locust street; New York's Stanford White home in Park avenue, and Washington's, in Jackson place, are open to Pitsburghers as also is the Providence Plantations Club. Cleveland has a City Club also and overseas one can be at home in the Halcyon Club, Cork street, London, and the American Woman's Club, in the Rue Boissiere, Paris. Pittsburgh club women are reminded to carry their membership cards when they go vacationing.

PLANS are being made by the Pittsburgh Alumnae Association of Kappa Delta to hold a picnic instead of the usual business meeting for this month. The association recently admitted to membership Erla Double, Katherine Dunning, Lysle McMillin and Genevieve Morris, of Xi Chapter, University of Pittsburgh; Agnes Kaminski, of Sigma Eta Chapter, St. Lawrence University, and Mrs. Richard Lippincott, also of Xi Chapter, who was formerly associated with the Youngstown Association.

* * *

THE Rev. R. M. Blackwood, general secretary of the Sabbath Association of the Pittsburgh District, is the speaker today at the monthly meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in the Methodist Building.

* * *

MRS. C. C. KOCHENDERFER, of Cedar boulevard, Mt. Lebanon, is spending July and August at Ramona Beach on Lake Ontario. Mrs. Kochenderfer is the new first vice president of the Mt. Lebanon Women's Club.

PGH. WHOLESALERS MAKE THIRD BUS TRADE TOUR

The third of the motor bus tours to towns in Pittsburgh trade territory arranged by the Wholesalers Council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, left the Chamber at 8:30 this morning to visit Tarentum, Kittanning, Ford City, Punxutawney and Dubois, remaining at Dubois over night. Tomorrow Indiana, Latrobe, Jeannette and Irwin will be visited. At least three more tours will be made between now and autumn.

BANKERS URGED TO EDUCATE BY ADS

JOHN A. PRICE

DETROIT, July 10.—John A. Price, Pittsburgh advertising man, in an address delivered here yesterday before the International Advertising convention, made a strong plea for the financial interests of America to co-operate in a nationalized campaign of education concerning the economics of finance.

He urged the bankers to follow the example of other advertisers, who have nationalized their products through liberal use of newspaper columns, claiming that the average citizen lacks a necessary knowledge of the diffirent financial activities.

In part he said:

"There should be a nationalized story of money and finance, dramatically told, explaining how the pooled resources of average citizens is the economic life blood of our country.

"It should explain the power of credit as a factor of prosperity, encouraging its wise use, while warning against abuse.

"It should print thrift in gay appeal, in the same mediums and with the same vivid illustrations which now characterize automobile advertising. It should erect detour signs in the public mind against the get-rich-quick promoter. It should arouse public insistence for national or standardized state laws, preventing questionable security issues.

"It should dramatize the fact that the average pay envelope is a temporary lease, cancellable by misfortune, old age or bad times. It should bridge the gap which now exists between the average banker and the average citizen, by a greater accent on the human equation.

"The unparallelel prosperity of this nation has lulled the financial interests into a false sense of security as to their true standing in public opinion. The percentage of high intelligence which understands the economics of finance will, I venture, be overwhelmed by ignorant criticism and suspicion if a depression of any magnitude overtakes America."

GERMAN CLINIC ROOF FALLS; INJURING ELEVEN

MUNICH, Germany, July 10.—(AP.)—While a party of American physicians were awaiting a facial operation by Prof. Eric Lasker, at the surgical clinics here yesterday, the glass roof collapsed, injuring 10 students and one of the American doctors. Authorities of the clinic were unable to explain why the roof gave way.

FALLS AT DOORSTEP; SUES CITY FOR $5,000

Mrs. Barbara M. Higgins, 90, 1 Gilmore way, sued the city of Pittsburgh for $5,000 damages in Common Pleas Court yesterday. She says the city permitted a small hole to exist in the sidewalk in front of her residence and that on the night of April 29 she stepped in it and broke her ankle.

LAMP IGNITES BLAST; TWO MINERS INJURED

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., July 10.—John Singerman, 52, and his son, Harry Singerman, 32, Midvale, were burned severely today when the lamp on the father's cap ignited a fuse of a powder blast in the Barnhill Coal Company's mine at Barnhill.

JOHN ELDER, BANKER AT NEW CASTLE, DIES

NEW CASTLE, Pa., July 10.—John Elder, Jr., 60, cashier of the First National Bank of Lawrence County, and a banker here for 40 years, died last night. He was active in Masonic and church circles and was a delegate to the recent Republican National Convention.

Francis Haiden Tells Emily That Coles Could Love Only Money

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Emily Day and Kitten are daughters of a worker in the Rossiter factory. Both are prevented by poverty from mingling with the socially elect of the little town. Emily had made an ideal of Kent Rossiter. Mary Nolan, whose father keeps a "speakeasy," is devoted to her. Mrs. Frances Haiden, a wealthy interior decorator, takes an interest in her. She gets a job with Mrs. Haiden. Kitten, Emily's sister, is going with a wild crowd and is running close to danger. Emily goes into partnership with Mrs. Haiden, Stella tells her that Skeets has deserted her. Kitten discovers that Ted is a chauffeur instead of a millionaire. Stella and Skeets are married. Her house completed, Emily invites Kingdon Cole for dinner.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

THE next day she tried to persuade herself that she had been over-sensitive. The flowers came as usual; they came for a week, in fact, before she arrived at the shop one morning and found no box at the door.

She telephoned his office in the afternoon, but they said he was out.

She received a note then. He was busy now with new shows opening; he was sorry but he wouldn't be able to visit Lyall for a time. Had they, perhaps, made a mistake? She was such a fine little friend he was sure she'd understand. And he remained hers sincerely.

It was like a slap in the face, that note. She read it twice before she tore it into tiny pieces and sent them drifting into the wastebasket.

CHAPTER XL.

WHEN Frances strolled in Emily asked if she had time to talk a bit.

"What's wrong, my dear? You look as if you'd seen a ghost."

"Maybe I have. I've seen something I don't understand. Will you tell me, Frances, why a man who has declared that you're the only thing in his life worth a darn suddenly decides it was all a mistake and remains 'yours sincerely?'"

"Ah! There are so many reasons, dear Emily. His digestion, perhaps, or the set of an east wind. Or the cussedness of a dress tie—they are fiendish, you know—or the turning over of a repressed desire. Or a new face or an old one come back. Or he may be a victim of the Oedipus complex or broke or afflicted with bunions.

"A woman may take her choice of these mildly insane reasons. But she won't. All women are so incurably romantic that any one of them will hunt around for a plot—did you know every female is a superb fictionist, dear?—and she'll anchor herself to it as the lovely, tragic heroine.

"She'll build the blighter up into an image of lost perfection and go milling with that silly burden through the rest of her days, or until another peg to hang her illusion on comes into her experience."

"But I'm serious, Frances. You see it's—well, it's happened to me."

The keen eyes lost their irony. "You, Emily? Someone you loved has done this to you?"

"I suppose I didn't love him. I tried though. But he seemed to love me. Until I invited him to dinner one evening—"

"Are you by any chance talking about Kingdon Coles?"

"You're guessing he's the sort?"

"Not guessing. Tell me, now."

So Emily told the story from the beginning. About Marty whom Agnes had chosen for her. About the dislike and something of fear she always had held for the Nolan. And about what King had said the night on the terrace and her own slowly forming conviction that she might love him sometime.

"It seemed winderful to have one so devoted, Frances. Always doing the pleasant thing, making me feel of such consequence. I was sure he loved me. So aristocratic in all his ways—blue blooded—"

"Oh, your fetich. 'Blood will tell.' There never was a baser libel on the work of an intelligent Creator.

"Blood! Blood blue and thin, what does it mean? Enervation, decay; anaemia of ambition, rigor of the emotions. Chill, fantastic pride; a foolish attitude toward humanity.

"It's warm, red blood that means truth. Life and laughter and love—all red-blooded, little Emily. Whereever you find those, in high places or lowly, you'll know there's rich, red blood running through them. Don't be deceived about that, my dear."

"But—"

"King Coles is a sham—a snob. I'm not saying aristocracy is all wrong; when it hits genuineness it's supreme. But every good thing has a counterfeit and aristocracy has its own in snobocracy. That's where Coles belongs; he has just enough of the real thing to color the spurious. There are many of the sort.

"Whether he loved you or not doesn't matter particularly. If it's any comfort to you I think he did.

"I didn't suspect—if you'd told me how things were going! I'm all to blame and with the best of motives."

She explained the actual circumstances. Emily had been introduced into the salon without explanations; there was an impression that she was an heiress. Coles might love an heiress, but the same girl as a wage-earner would not be allowed in his life no matter what his feeling for her.

"Charge it up to experience and let it go. But be sure you let it go. Corrode your sweetness if you don't.

"It's not what happens to us from the outside that counts; it's what we let inside that stirs up trouble. And don't hold it against me, Emily."

"As if I could!" She gave the older woman a look full of affection but shaky little movements went about her lips. "I'll let it go—take care of that—"

But in the evening when she led Raggedy out for a walk up toward North Mountain she realized that she was struggling, rather, to let it go.

It wasn't that she cared for Coles, really, or that she wished him back. But she kept remembering things her father had said about his kind; sly, little ill-natured things which now jumped out to torment her, challenging her to deny their truth.

A few times she had felt twinges of this; nothing more than questions rising, when she walked on the river road as to why some should have so much and others, like herself, so little.

Now the questions centered about Coles, tempting her. He could make love to her, ask her to marry him, and dash it all away when he found she was not the heiress he had thought her.

How did he know she wasn't madly in love with him, breaking her heart as Stella had broken hers when Skeets threw her over? Why did men like Coles and Skeets have the right to do this to girls not of their class?

Bitterness oppressed her; in that moment she was very near to slipping into the misanthropy that had dominated and victimized Steve Day.

But she thought, all at once, of Frances Haiden. Frances was in a way of the group which would have drawn her father's ire. Yet Frances had befriended her always, she could have been no kinder nor more disinterested had Emily been her sister. That did not look like class-indifference.

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

Bezdek Says Football Outlook at Penn State Is Normally Good—Game Improved. Praises McCracken—Twenty Clear Six Feet in High Jump at One Meet—Passing of Earl Smith.

Hugo Bezdek

HUGO BEZDEK, former Pirate manager and now director of athletics and head football coach at Pennsylvania State College, is a Pittsburgh visitor. He came here on some private business, and when this is completed today or tomorrow he will be joined by his family for a vacation trip to Cape May.

"Bez" has almost recovered the ankle ailment that gave him so much trouble last year that he required crutches for some time and later the aid of a cane.

HUGO reports that he has been playing 18 holes of golf at regular intervals on the State College links, and believes that a reasonable amount of handball after his vacation will put him in just the right shape for the football season.

Neither a boaster nor a hard-luck crier at any time, the the Penn State coach's word may always be taken as an expression of what he actually believes when he talks about his team in advance.

"Of course, it's utterly impossible for any coach to tell what his team is going to do in an approaching season," he said. "No one can tell a thing about it. If you have a lot of fine-looking material it may prove very disappointing on the field; or if you have what shapes up as an inferior item on paper it may become fired with something that will enable it to tear through all sorts of opposition.

"BESIDES, there is the chance of injuries to players who are essential to the team's success. One turned ankle, perhaps suffered in a mere practice scrimmage, may ruin a season for a team.

"With due allowance for all such happening, however, I believe that I can safely say Penn State's outlook for the coming season is satisfying. We look normally good. All except one of our promising sophomores passed the June examinations, and the lone exception is making ready to qualify later by taking a course of summer school.

We have lost some good material by graduation but we are confident of finding some good stuff among the newcomers from last year's freshman team, and, all around, we are in a position to look forward to the season with plenty of hope."

THE Penn State coach says the latest changes in the football rules, particularly in the matter of the backward pass—the original intent of which was to open the way for end runs by teams that did not have the weight or power to hit the line successfully—are certain to improve the game.

"During the last few years I have seen football improve to a greater extent than it did during all the rest of the time I have been in the game," said Hugo. "It ought to be greater than ever next fall, and I look for it to please the people more than in any previous season."

Herb McCracken

BEZDEK said that the three weeks' summer course in football coaching opened at Penn State by Herb McCracken, would continue until July 20, replacing basketball coaching, offered by Ken Loeffler last summer, Penn State will put on a course of track and cross country coaching by Nate Cartmell, following McCracken's course.

Hugo paid high tribute to McCracken. "Herb is a remarkable boy in every sense," said the veteran coach. "He is a fine character, is a credit to football and college athletics in general, is as smart as they make 'em and has a world of ability."

THE most amazing development of all the American tryouts for the Olympic games, was the achievement of Ed Hamm of Georgia Tech in making a running broad jump of 25 feet 11⅛ inches, smashing the world record by a quarter of an inch.

Edward Hamm

There was a time when the athletic world scoffed at the possibility that any one would ever succeed in jumping 25 feet. In 1925 De Hart Hubbard, the Negro athlete, jumped 25 feet 10⅞ inches and it was predicted by the astonished experts that that mark would not be equaled in the life of the present generation.

BUT now along comes Hamm in less than three years after Hubbard's feat, and passes the mark that had been figured as being well-nigh unbeatable. Judging from this it would seem that a jump of 26 feet would be a possibility, but likelihood it will take a long long time, if that figure is reached. Only one-fourth of an inch has been gained in four years, and it will be a tough grind overcoming the seven-eights of an inch, necessary to make a jump of 26 feet.

HAMM'S long jump was not the only stunner in the big events at Cambridge. Another record of a sort was made when no fewer than 20 competing athletes cleared six feet in the running high jump. Such a field may never again be gathered at a track meet.

One after another the men ran up to the bar and easily cleared it at six feet. It was not until it was moved up to 6 feet 1 inch that they found the going becoming more difficult and started dropping out.

It speaks volumes for the quality of American athletes in general that 20 men capable of high-jumping six feet could be assembled at a single meet.

DESPITE the fact that Earl Smith served the Pirates well in his four years' connection with the club, local fans familiar with recent conditions in the individual case of the former Giant and Brave will concede that the management

A LA GENE TUNNEY

Here we have Pie Traynor, captain of the Pirates, reading one of the volumes of the Harvard Classics which were presented by the fans last Saturday, along with $2,000 in cash. Pretty soon he'll be set to give Prof. Gene Tunney a stiff argument on this culture stuff.

Burke to Hit Opening Ball

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

JOHN JAY BURKE, executive committeeman of the public links section, U. S. G. A., and city office manager for the new Allegheny county parks, will drive the first ball at 6 o'clock Thursday morning that will set more than 600 entrants off in The Sun-Telegraph's first annual free West Penn amateur junior golf tournament for the William Randolph Hearst trophy and 16 other prizes, on the municipal links in Schenley Park. Burke has graciously consented to honor the tournament with his presence, and in hitting the first ball he will be starting the largest local golf tournament that has been held here in years.

When asked if he would officially open the tournament, Burke said: "There is nothing in the world that would please me more. The Sun-Telegraph's tournament is one of the finest ever conceived, and I know it will do much toward giving us more and better golfers in the next generation. I am delighted."

The entries closed for the tournament last night. With a few entrants still under investigation, the

LOSES LAST ARGUMENT

Earl (Oil) Smith was given his unconditional release by the Pirates yesterday after all of the clubs in the two major leagues had waived on his services. Thus passes from the Big Tent one of the scrappiest of performers, a stormy petrel who lost few arguments, but certainly finished second in this last debate with the club officials.

PADDOCK GETS O. K., ON OLYMPIC TEAM

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP.)—The rocky path of Charley Paddock's third bid for Olympic sprint honors has been cleared of its last obstacle.

Exonerated by the Registration Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of professionalism, he will sail for Amsterdam with the rest of the American team on the SS. Roosevelt tomorrow noon.

Paddock's vindication came after he had conferred with Daniel Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., and Robert S. Weaver, president of the Southern Pacific Association of the A. A. U., explaining in detail just how his motion picture tour was arranged. The sprinter reiterated that he had received remuneration neither for his work in the film itself nor for his personal appearance in theaters showing it.

Shut out in the 100-meter competition in the final tryouts at Cambridge, Paddock qualified for the team by staging a sensational comeback in the 200 meters in which he finished second to Charley Borah.

Scarcely had that race been run before his amateur status was questioned by the Olympics Selections Committee and the National A. A. U. Track and Field Committee. The latter body voted 5 to 3 not to recommend the Californian for a place on the team and the selections committee actually had named Borah, Roland Locke, Henry Cumming and Jackson Scholz as the 200-meter team at Amsterdam.

Weaver threatned to withdraw all of his association candidates from the team if the Paddock case was not referred to the A. A. U. Registration Committee for final action. After an argument, Weaver finally swung the committees in his direction. Both bodies rescinded their previous action and voted to refer the matter to Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, head of the American Olympic forces. Gen. Macarthur promptly passed the case to the registration committee.

Locke appears to be the chief loser. He had been tentatively picked to fill Paddock'se place on the 200-meter team should the Californian be disqualified. Locke, who starred at the University of Nebraska, now becomes one of the also-rans.

LONDON, July 10.—(AP.)—Helen Wills has received an invitation to visit Australia to participate in the Australian tennis championships, following the American title tests August 20. She has discussed the proposed visit with officials of the Australian Lawn Tennis Association and expressed a strong desire to see Australia. She has taken the invitation under consideration.

TERRY LINGO WINS OVER YOUNG RUDY

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 10.—Terry Lingo's star shone more brightly on the fistic horizon today by virtue of his decision over Young Rudy, of Charleroi, in a grueling and slashing 10-round bout here last night.

It was a real test for the boy. He met the ablest boxer he has encountered in the Charleroi boy and absorbed a lot oof punishment but the judges and referee ruled that he had given more than he received. One judge ruled for Lingo. The other held the fight a draw but Referee Martin Dietz decided the argument by casting his vote for Lingo.

NOW that they have battered the Giants into a somewhat bewildered state, the Pirates today are chesty enough to think they are out of their bad slump. That the Oaklanders made a commendable showing while the Polo Grounders were in our midst is the common opinion of Pirate fans who apparently think that brighter things are ahead for the club.

Burt Shotton led his Phillies into town this morning. The dauntless band dropped its entire series of three games in Cincinnati, but the Phils are likely to be dangerous in Pittsburgh. Nevertheless the Pirates have a fine opportunity to retrieve some of the lost ground that has been recorded against them during the first half of the season, now that the comparatively easy Eastern clubs will stop off here in the ensuing two weeks.

Manager Bush will send either John Miljus or Remy Kremer to the mound this afternoon. Jimmy Ring is due to face the Oaklanders. The Quakers will tarry here for four games.

Burleigh Grimes made the farewell of his last year's mates a rather sad affair. The spitball star and Left-Hander Jim Faulkner fought it out on the mound yesterday under a sweltering sun, the home boys winning 5 to 3.

L. WANER HITS HOMER

The Buccos had to have one good break to get the decision, this being supplied in the way of a fly ball that gave L. Waner a two-run homer. Sprout hoisted one to center with Adams on base. Jimmy Welsh may have been bothered with the sun; in any event he failed to get under the loft and it bounded along to the center field fence while Sprout the Younger galloped around the bases behind Sparky.

The Buccos helped Burleigh to win his thirteenth victory in the first round, Adams, the Waner boys and Capt. Traynor all having a part in a run scored at the outset. The Giants forced a deadlock in the fourth, but Sprout's homer in the fifth broke the ice in favor of the Pirates.

Faulkner, meantime, was hurling a fair game against the Freebooters, but they solved him for two runs in the seventh and eighth. The Waners and Adams pushed over a marker in the seventh and Grimes doubled to the scoreboard to score Hargreaves in the eighth.

The Giants became troublesome in the eighth and ninth. With two out in this inning, Francis Hogan singled to drive in a run and Cohen scored the last run of the game in the ninth, which he pried open with a three-bagger to the iron gate in right center.

Oakmont's Stars Win

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

THE defeat of Max Marston, of the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, former national amateur champion and one of Pennsylvania's most prominent links stars, featured the first round of match play in the Pennsylvania state amateur golf tournament at Oakmont today. Marston was put out by George G. Flinn, Jr., of the Fox Chapel Golf Club, and the margin was the rather decisive one of 4 and 3.

The Philadelphia contingent suffered another stunning reversal when W. J. (Zimmer) Platt of the Whitemarsh Country Club, one of the most renowned tournament performers in the Philadelphia district, was defeated by S. M. Parks, Jr., of Highland, 3 and 2. Parke, only 18 years of age, played superb golf and did not permit the fame of his opponent to effect his game. Platt set the pace in the first qualifying round yesterday and scored sufficiently well in the second to tie for the medal.

FOWNES SCORES EAGLff

The veteran, W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, another former national amateur titleholder, played in brilliant form and scored one of the most decisive victories of the day, putting out R. F. oMreland of Fox Chapel by 7 and 6.

Joseph I Crawford and H. C. Fownes, II, both of Oakmont, survived the first-round test and assured the home club of strong representation in the second round.

H. C. Fownes, II, who scored an eagle 2 on the seventeenth hole, gave the most sensational one-hole display when he holed out from a sand trap.

In the play-off for the last place in the first 16, this morning, R. C. Long of Stanton Heights defeated his club mate, J. B. Crookston, scoring a 4 to Crookston's 5 on the first hole of play. Long, however, did not survive the first round, being put out by H. C. Fownes, II, 2 and 1.

A. R. Maxwpell, of Oakmont, who won the title last year, but who failed to qualify for the championship flight yesterday, defaulted to Fred Brand, rJ., of Hannastown in the first round today.

The summary:

FIRST SIXTEEN.

GENE'S BRUISED EAR ON MEND

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 10.—(INS.)—Gene Tunney's bruised ear is entirely healed and will not afford Thomas Heeney a choice target when the two heavyweights meet on July 26. Billy Vidabeck and Harold Mays took pot shots at the injured memeber in six rounds of sparring yesterday, but the cut did not reopen, although it may blossome forth into a regulation cauliflower in time.

More boxing, but no road work, is on the program for today. The champion is coming along a trifle too fast to suit him, as he fears going stale before the big bout.

HEENEY FINDS MASCOT

FAIRHAVEN, N. J., July 10.—Tom Heeney has found a mascot for his approaching heavyweight title bout with Gene Tunney. She is Virginia Maxson, a 15-year-old girl who lives in a houseboat on the Shrewsbury River. Heeney found her while tramping through the woods and has nicknamed her "The Girl of the Woods." She will see the big fight as the guest of Heeney.

After taking the day off yesterday, Heeney prepared to go back to the training grind today.

MILJUS

winning marker going over on the pitch.

When the Pittsburgh club put in its bid for clearance on Miljus, the Cleveland management refused to waive, although it cost the Indians a pretty penny to get John. The inter-league waiver price is $7,500, but when first-year players are involved the price is adjusted to the minor-league purchase price. As the Pittsburgh club paid considerably more than $7,500 for the Serbian, his new employers had to give over a princely sum to secure him.

Miljus seemed to have his 1927 stuff and cunning when he reported at Paso Robles this spring, but he was one of the first casualties. The Pittsburgh boy had to go to bed with a minor ailment, yet he was slow in reaching form again.

On several occasions this season, Miljus gave indication of holding to the stride that made him stand out last year, but in the past two weeks his relief work and his movement in games in which he started were not up to his standard and recently his employers decided to dispose of him.

WON FIVE, LOST SIX

Penn Avenue John, however, has not been a total loss to the Pirates this year, he having won five and lost six games.

Although Miljus enjoyed his experiences as a Pirate pitcher he will not leave the club with deep regrets. He has not been himself lately owing to his disappointing stride; the fact that he still seems to have all his stuff augurs well for the Serb as he goes about his duties for Roger Peckinpaugh's team.

Miljus' career is quite spectacular, he having stepped out of baseball with many other stars to shoulder arms in France. Along with Joe Harris for bunkmate, John headed for France about 10 years ago and was soon in front-line action with the Three Hundred Twentieth Infantry of the Eightieth Division.

After pitching for the University of Pittsburgh and Duquesne University as a student, Miljus moved into semi-pro baseball and in 1915 he allied himself with the Pittsburgh Club of the Federal League. Later he received a short tryout with the Brooklyn Dodgers, but soon afterward he embarked on his military career.

GOES TO MINORS

Coming out of the service, John joined the oTledo club of the American Association. The Lawrenceville boy was with the Dodgers in 1920 and 1921, the following season finding him with the New Orleans and Nashville clubs of the Southern Association. John's baseball journeyings took him to Rochester in 1923 and he left that International League sector the following season for Bridgeport of the Eastern League.

The year 1925 saw Miljus in a cross-country canter; he joined the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League. Two good seasons with the Seattle club followed and he was going bigger than ever in 1927 when Scout Joe Devine recommended his purchase. Miljus came just in the nick of time to bolster up an injured team.

SPORT COMMENT

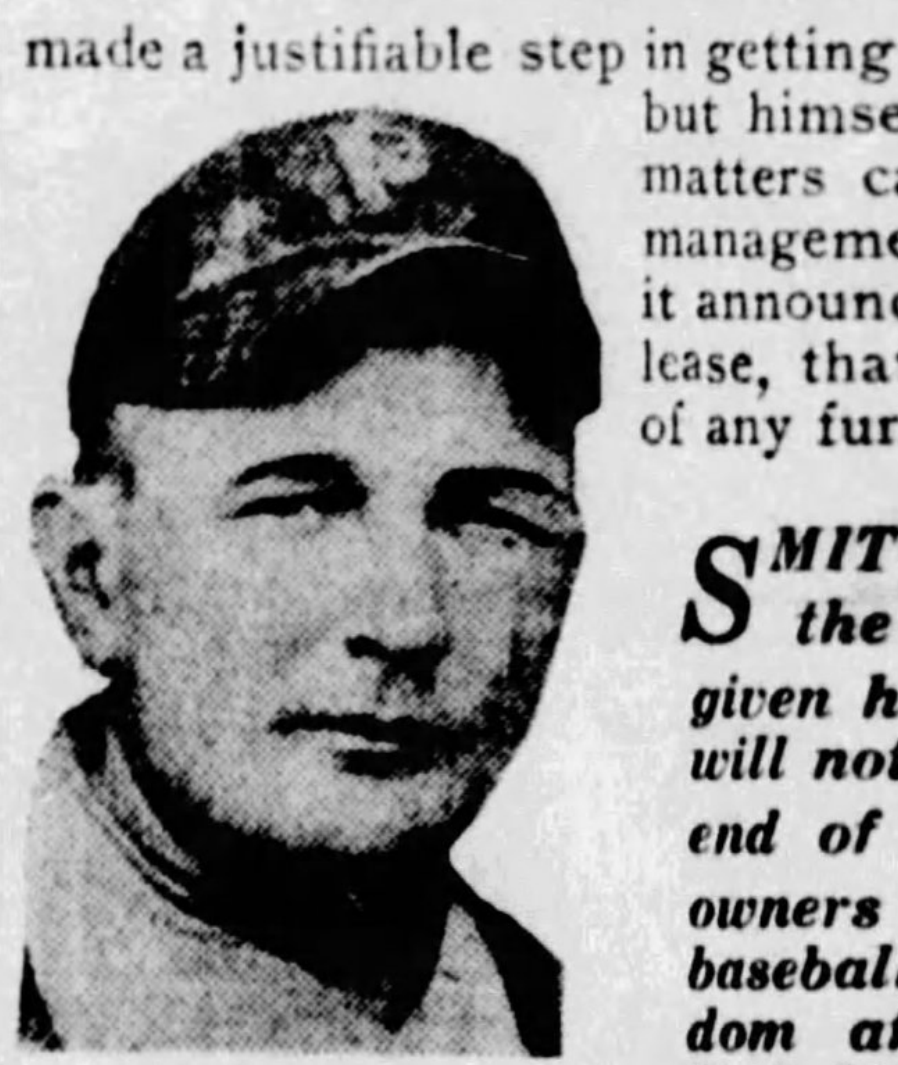
made a justifiable step in getting rid of him. Smith had no one but himself to blame for the fact that matters came to such a point that the management was forced to conclude, as it announced in issuing notice of his release, that "he did not promise to be of any further use to the club."



Earl Smith

SMITH was treated very well by the Pittsburgh club in being given his unconditional release. He will not be a 10-year man until the end of this season, so the Pirate owners were not compelled under baseball law to give him his freedom after getting waivers from both big leagues on him, but could have sold him to the minors. Under baseball law, Pittsburgh could also keep Smith from accepting an offer from any other big league club for a period of 10 days, but President Dreyfuss handed Smith his 10 days' extra pay, and gave him permission to sign immediately wherever he finds an opening.

A SAMPLE of the rough, yet amusing stuff, that Smith sometimes pulled on the diamond is contained in an incident of a world series game between the Giants and Yankees. Smith, catching for the Giants, had been fined $250 by Umpire George Moriarty. After the game, Commissioner Landis, while mingling with the players, and wearing a battered sombrero, said: "Now, Mr. Smith, if you will just apologize to Mr. Moriarty, I will remit that fine." "Just keep that $250, old boy," Smith responded and buy yourself a new lid with it."

633 Enter Tourney

accepted entry list totals not a boy less than 633, and may reach 675—just think of that! If The Sun-Telegraph cannot find a second Bobby Jones out of that bunch of boys, no one ever will.

TO ANNOUNCE PAIRINGS

The pairings and starting times will be announced tomorrow in The Sun-Telegraph. Any boy or boys who do not find their names listed and who have sent in entry blanks will please communicate with the Golf Tournament Editor the same day between 9 and 11:30 a. m. It may be that the entry blank was not properly countersigned, or that no age was marked in—or that you are under investigation. There have been several complaints about boys being over age; a birth certificate will be demanded of every boy who is apparently older than he says he is.

The Sun-Telegraph's tournament will be conducted strictly on an amateur basis, and any boy, furthermore, who is known to have accepted money for caddying after having attained his sixteenth birthday also will be disqualified immediately. Any boy caught acting anything but gentlemanly on the course, according to the etiquette of the game of golf, or not scoring according to the U. S. G. A. rules, also will be immediately disqualified.

Every entrant will have received a book on the rules of the game before he tees off; there will be no excuse for ignorance. Al McBride, Schenley Park's popular professional, will settle all disputes and controversies regarding scoring.

Frank Petrolia, who runs the restaurant in the Schenley Park clubhouse, likes the boys, too. He has informed the Golf Tournament Editor that he will lower the prices on sandwiches and other foodstuffs especially for the boys. He'll give them a good sandwich for half his usual price. His generosity is well in keeping with the good will of all of the members of the Schenley Park family Andy Petrolia, caddie master; Eddie Kunold, Tom O'Keefe, Hoppy Hapchuck, William Earl Super and Chuck Onoratta, as well as the city fathers of City Council, the County Commissioners, the president of the United States Golf Association, the general counsel of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, Walter Hagen, and Bobby Jones himself, who are only a few among thousands who realize the importance to the game of golf The Sun-Telegraph's tournament represents.

NO LOCKER SPACE

There will be little provision for locker space at Schenley Park, and so it is requested that the boys come dressed for action. Remember this: The Sun-Telegraph will NOT provide clubs or balls, although a limited number of sets may be rented from Professional Al McBride for the occasion.

There are to be 17 prizes in all: The William Randolph Hearst trophy, emblematic of the tournament championship, will be presented to the boy who shoots the lowest score, no matter whether he is in the junior or sub-junior class. He also will receive a solid gold medal and a golf club. The winner of the other division also will receive a solid gold medal and a beautiful golf club. The runner-up in each division will receive a gold medal and a golf club. The third-place boy in each division will receive a sterling silver medal and a club. And the two highest scorers in each division will receive consolation silver medals.

It is something to work for, boys—but, don't forget: The game of golf must always remain uppermost in your mind. Play the game as it should be played—not as you think it should. Each boy will score for his partner; no boy will score for himself. No two boys who know each other will be permitted to play in the same foursome, so far as is possible. The starting times and pairing will be set impartially, and any boy not presenting himself at the first tee within five minutes after his stipulated starting time will automatically disqualify himself. Tardiness at the tee absolutely will not be excusable, due to the tremendous size of the field, the major part of which, it is hoped, will finish on Thursday, with the remainder playing Friday morning, early.

WILLIS NAMED COACH AT NINÊVEH HIGH

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 10.—Buril Willis, former Waynesburg College football and basketball star, who graduated here in 1926, has been appointed director of athletics and principal of the high school at Nineveh, eight miles west of here.

Since graduating Willis has been coaching in various high schools in his home state, West Virginia, and was chosen for the Nineveh position from a large field of applicants. Willis captained the Yellow Jacket basketball team in 1926.

P. A. A. Netters Win West Penn Crown

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

DRS. JOHN O'LOUGHLIN AND BILLY M'ELLROY, aces of the P. A. A. and erstwhile wearers of the Blue and Gold of Pitt, downed the Carnegie Tech stars, B. P. Hoover and A. J. Glaser, yesterday in the final joust for the Western Pennsylvania doubles net championship. The contest was reeled off on the Winged Head lot, whither the fag end of the tourney was transferred after almost a fortnight's play on the Pittsburgh Golf Club courts, and the verdict was rendered in straight sets after a hectic battle that saw the Plaid pair go under with colors flying. The count read 8-6, 6-2, 6-2.

O'Loughlin had previously copped the men's singles title by dint of semi-final triumph over Byron Baur, Erie youth and 1927 premier, and final victory at the expense of diminutive brother Billy O'Loughlin, captain of the Shady Side Academy racquet squad. McEllroy held West Penn singles laurels more than once in summers gone by, but did not compete in the man-to-man division this year.

Olympic Stars Lauded

By LAWSON ROBERTSON,
Head Coach American Olympic Squad.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(US.)—The Olympic squad is now encamped in New York, waiting for boat departure on the morrow; the greatest athletic team ever assembled and one that is straining at the leash, eager for Olympic action.

Nothing short of the most sweeping triumph in Olympic history will satisfy this squad. The boys feel that they have condition, that they have ability and they want this team of theirs to go into athletic annals as one that met the stoutest opposition ever faced and crumpled it into disastrous defeat.

It isn't over-confidence. Rather it is a fine show of confidence that these boys have. They realize that Europe this year is better equipped to fight us all the way, but they feel that the four years of training, which most of them have undergone has tuned them to concert pitch.

The committee which had to make the final selections and eliminate more than a score of men who were just a fraction of an inch, or a split fraction of time inferior to the actual choices, had a heart-breaking task. In the matter of sprinters, the work was most difficult. Beyond Frank Wyckoff, who seems to stand out alone at this time, we have at least a dozen men so closely matched that it would be a toss-up any time they run against each other.

"Poverty Makes Money" Truer Than "Money Makes Money"

By B. C. FORBES

YOU often hear it said "It takes money to make money." That is only a half truth. In America it is often less than half true. Rather is it true that "poverty makes money."

J. OGDEN ARMOUR told me that he once was offered $150,000,000 for his part-ownership in Armour & Co. During the greater part of his life Mr. Armour had many millions of dollars at his command. But in this case money did not make money, for Mr. Armour died plagued by many debts—which, however, his widow and daughter have since heroically sought to meet.

THE Goulds were left large fortunes and the control of important railroads. Instead of the Gould money making more money, it slipped through their fingers at such a rate that today there isn't one "Gould Railroad" left and the family is no longer anything whatsoever of a power in either the railway or financial world.

THE history of the Vanderbilt family also proves that it takes more than money to make money. The original Commodore Vanderbilt, a giant in brains and money, had no money at the start. His descendants were left mountains of money, but almost all of them have failed to demonstrate that "money makes money." The Vanderbilt fortune has not all been dissipated by any means, but so far as known, not one Vanderbilt is today making any great amount of money. And the family have passed from a dominant position in the world of affairs.

THE case of Harriman's oldest son, W. Averill Harriman, is interesting. The late railway king left upwards of $75,000,000 to his widow and she backed her oldest son to the limit in his ambition to become a towering figure in the shipping world. Although young Harriman has talents and pays extraordinarily serious attention to business, he found fate against him in his chosen field. While he made headway during the war, shipping conditions in America and all over the world were such that it proved impossible to make money in it. It remains to be seen whether young Harriman will get by and be able to cause the family fortune to multiply.

TWENTY-FIVE years ago the principal figure in the wholesale drygoods business in New York was John Claflin. He inherited from his dynamic father a colossal business and ample funds. But one day the country was startled by an announcement that Claflin & Co. had become financially embarrassed. The Claflin family had failed to make money.

About the same time a very picturesque personality in the copper world, Fritz Augustus Heinze, was going on high. He fought Henry H. Rogers and other powerful factors in the Montana copper field and made it so hot for them that they finally effected a settlement. Heinze bought a New York Bank and began to cut quite a swath. But the panic of 1907 toppled him over.

Don't you read almost every week of the death of some man who once was wealthy but who died penniless? The other day the newspapers reported the death in poverty of a man once estimated to be worth $50,000,000. And in your own observations have you not known of men who at one time were rich and who lost everything?

EUROPE furnishes conspicuous examples of money failing to make money. Hugo Stinnes, who became the superman of Germany after the war and stretched out for control of a bewildering variety of enterprises and industries, died without leaving even enough to take comfortable care of his family, his affairs having been gravely involved. Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, the so-called "mystery man" of Belgium, who lived on a princely scale and made himself prominent in high finance and big business may prove to have possessed many millions or he may prove to have died worth little. Neither he nor anyone else ever explained clearly just how he made his reputed millions.

ALMOST every present-day fortune of colossal size in America was made by a poor man. Rockefeller was poor, so was Carnegie, so was Ford, so was George F. Baker, so were all of Rockefeller's early partners, so was Harriman, so was James J. Hill, so was Charles M. Schwab, so was Russell Sage, so was John S. Kennedy, so was the father of the present generation of Guggenheims.

SO it is not always true that "money makes money," but it is very often true that "poverty makes money."

HIGHER MONEY FORCES SHARES DOWNWARD

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP.)—Stock prices turned reactionary today after an early display of strength. Fears of higher money rates, intensified by the marking up of the call money renewal rate to 6 per cent, and the calling of about $15,000,000 in bank loans, cast a damper on bullish enthusiasm. Early gains of 1 to 6 points were cut down or wiped out, and replaced by a number of declines ranging from 1 to 4 points in the active issues, and much more in a few of the high priced specialties.

The gain of 220,187 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation last month proved to have been fairly well discounted as the stock was heavily sold after the report came out. Selling pressure also was effective against such issues as Montgomery-Ward, Sears Roebuck, Wright Aeronautical, Warner Pictures A, Radio, Johns Manville, Curtiss and Greene Cananea Copper, all of which sold 2 to 4 points below yesterday's final quotations. Indian Refining preferred, which had scored a spectacular gain in the last few weeks, broke 27 points on one sale, and New York & Harlem dealt in only in odd lots, fell 20 points.

Operations for the advance succeeded in lifting a few specialties to new high records, but they had difficulty in attracting an outside following in the general list. Private estimates of a large increase in crude oil production tended to restore the buying movement in the shares although further accumulation was noted in Sinclair and the stock of a few other refiners.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened firm today at an advance of 7 to 16 points in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables. Further liquidation of long accounts was inspired by the unexpectedly large acreage figures of yesterday, but selling was much less active and was absorbed on setbacks of 3 or 4 points from the opening figures, prices later working up on covering and some trade buying.

October advanced to 21.74c, or about 12 points net higher, but the volume of business tapered off after the first few minutes, and the market was comparatively quiet at the end of the first hour.

Private cables said there was a tendency to minimize the government acreage figures in Liverpool as compared with private estimates and reported some continental buying, although Manchester buyers were reserved, anticipating lower levels.

Circulation of July notices, estimated at 9,000 bales, caused some liquidation of the near month. After early decline to 21.64c for October, the market firmed up on covering or rebuying by recent sellers influenced by unfavorable weather news and a firmer technical position. October sold up to 21.81c, or 19 points net higher, before the end of the morning, but there was further liquidation and prices were a few points off from the best at midday.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP.)—No sales were reported in the raw sugar market early today. The undertone was easier and holders were asking from 4.30@4.33c for spots, but there appeared to be no buying interest above 4.27c.

Except for July, which showed an advance of 2 points on covering, raw sugar futures were generally lower under liquidation and commission house selling, with prices declining to new low records for the season. The market opened 2 points higher to 2 points lower. Following the call early losses were regained on covering, but prices declined again under increased offerings, with the list at midday 2 to 4 points below the previous close. The failure of demand to broaden in the spot market and the disappointing cables from abroad were responsible for the easier undertone.

In refined, withdrawals were of fair proportions, but new business was light with buyers inclined to make no fresh commitments in the face of the unsettled tone of the spot market. Prices were unchanged at 5.85@5.90c for fine granulated.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, July 10.—(AP.)—Owing largely to more serious reports about black rust wheat prices averaged higher early today. Relative firmness of Liverpool wheat quotations had also a bullish influence. Opening unchanged to ⅝c up, Chicago wheat sagged a little in some cases, and then scored a general advance. Corn and oats developed firmness also, with corn starting at ⅛c decline to ⅜c gain, and later showing some loss all around but afterward turning upgrade. Provisions were easy.

According to dispatches from a widely known crop expert, black rust in the damaging stage is just beginning to show itself in Marquis Spring wheat near Aberdeen, S. D. He said he had observed the rust on head stems in three separate fields. Federal Agent Bulger, of South Dakota, was also quoted as saying that there is a general but light sprinkling of stem rust over most of Eastern South Dakota.

Upturns in corn values today were coupled with the fact that hogs are bringing above $11.00 a hundredweight, and with assertions that cattle are at the highest prices on record in peace time. It was also contended that corn receipts are unduly scant, and that country stocks are the lowest ever known at this season of the year.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

PITTSBURGH—
The Logical Location for Aircraft Manufacture

A NEW industry stands on the threshold of the world—an industry which gives promise of reaching, in time, the gigantic proportions of the automobile business. Aircraft manufacture today holds the same position motor-car manufacture occupied twenty-five years ago. History will repeat itself.

Four thousand airplanes, will be manufactured and sold in the United States in 1928. The industry is growing conservatively and soundly.

This is Pittsburgh's opportunity. No other city can offer to this new industry more than Pittsburgh. It is the logical location for the manufacture of aircraft. Practically everything required for the assembling of a complete airplane can be purchased either in the Pittsburgh district or within a radius of 200 miles.

Pittsburgh is ideally situated—close to raw materials, well served by transportation lines, plenty of skilled labor, and plenty of capital.

The Mellon National Bank is ready now, as always, to assist in the financing of worthy enterprises.

SUDDEN BUYING SPURS WESTINGHOUSE AIR BRAKE

GENERAL LIST IS QUIET

A sharp upturn in Westinghouse Air Brake in the New York market found immediate reflection in the dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with the stock running up to the highest level since mid-spring.

Much of the buying through the New York market was said to have originated here and was attributed to reliable reports that the company had recently taken a large order for railroad safety equipment from the Pennsylvania. In addition, it was reported that a general resumption of safety signal equipment buying is getting under way and that the manufacturers of these devices will shortly be running at capacity. Some of this business is designated as being "forced in" by the Interstate Commerce Commission order requiring the installation of safety equipment, but there is also a considerable volume of voluntary business pending.

On the move today, Air Brake advanced more than 3 points before it met enough selling to halt the upswing. Not a great deal of stock changed hands on the advance, which fact was interpreted as indicating that holders were satisfied with the outlook and willing to wait for the almost certain improvement in the company's affairs.

Air Brake's earnings for the first half of the year will make a poor showing, in fact it is generally believed that the dividend requirement will not be earned for the six months. However, there is no apprehension as to the declaration of the usual 50-cent quarterly payment when directors meet to take action on that matter.

Aside from the upturn in Air Brake, the market here was rather dull. Prices held firm around the levels posted on the previous close. Central Ohio Steel Products slipped back a small fraction while Pittsburgh Plate Glass was handled in odd lots at a five-point decline from Saturday's close, the last recorded sale.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Tight Money Offsets Tonnage Bulge.

A tightening money market offset the beneficial influence of the 220,000-ton increase in the United States Steel Corporation's unfilled orders and while there was an attempt to rally Steel on the news, the buying lacked vigor and the stock met enough selling to quash the effort of the bulls. Banks were withdrawing funds from the money to handle the July 15 settlements and it was thought a higher rate on call loans would be posted at any time. Opening on call money was 6 per cent today, as against yesterday's renewal rate of 5½. There was a noticeable lack of snap in the entire market with but few of the speculative favorites showing any of their recent gymnastic tendencies. The gain in Steel tonnage was about twice what the Street expected, but it was partially explained by the placing of big oil country pipe orders toward the end of the month. Call loans against bank acceptances, which were recently reduced from 5½ per cent to 5 per cent, have been advanced again to the higher figure. About a week ago a 7 per cent rate was in effect on bills.

Oils Less Active.

Oil stocks quieted down after their display of mild strength yesterday. Better outside participation is the result of buying advices which have come out of several of the largest commission houses in the past week or 10 days. These firms maintain that the oils have been lagging thus far and with the season of increased consumption now at hand the statistical position may attract more interest to the stocks in the coming weeks. Some of the low-priced oils are meeting buying from small outsiders who have been out of the market recently.

Under the terms of the merger, which was announced last May, Telling stockholders will received 50 shares of National Dairy for 78 shares of Telling.

The June output was the smallest monthly total this year. Percentage of operation in June was 76.37 against 82.58 in May and for the six months 84.31.

Mid-West Steel Prospects.

A. E. Adams, director of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, believes the steel industry in the Mid-West is passing through the low point of the season and that depression during mid-summer will be less pronounced than last year. Mid-West steel trade, he asserts, should be able to operate through July and August at 70 per cent of capacity. Because of keen competition and depressed prices, the industry will not show large earnings this year, Mr. Adams said.

Traders Favor Copper Stocks.

Although the current period is one of smaller demand for copper, quotations for the metal have been well held, and trade interests are of the opinion that when the fall demand makes itself felt prices will be upward. Copper stocks generally are well liked in most quarters and it is maintained that any reactionary tendency would encounter scale buying in this group. Kennecott is looked upon as one of the logical leaders on the prospects of a dividend increase soon.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

YESTERDAY the principal items found in the income account of a corporation's annual report were discussed in this column. Today, we shall turn to the balance sheet.

The income account gives a statement of all of the company's revenues and expenses for a certain period of time. The balance sheet is a picture of all of the company's assets and liabilities at a particular moment.

While the annual report of a corporation for the year ended December 31, 1927, would include an income account summarizing the profits for the entire year, the balance sheet would show the exact state of the company's finances at the close of business on the last day of the year.

THE balance sheet is divided into two parts headed "Assets" and "liabilities." There are two kinds of assets, fixed and current.

The fixed assets include investments in land, buildings, machinery and mineral deposits and any equipment necessary for the company's operations. The improvements made to these properties during the year, outside of ordinary repairs, are not charged against income but are added to this account. If the corporation's bookkeeping is properly handled the amounts charged off for depreciation and depletion, which were mentioned in describing the income account are deducted each year from the value at which physical properties are carried.

Some corporations add depreciation and depletion to a special account on the liabilities side of the balance sheet which answers the same purpose.

INVESTMENTS made in subsidiary or affiliated companies and any other dispositions of company funds which are of more or less permanent nature are also listed on the asset side of the balance sheet.

Although the permanent assets change from year to year, due to additions to the properties, obsolescence and possibly the sale of some of the equipment, they are usually items which may be considered as the tools with which the company works and ordinarily they do not show much fluctuation.

THE current assets consist of the cash necessary to carry on the business, money owed by customers, the inventories of finished goods, raw materials and products in process of completion. Current assets are any items which can be readily converted into cash. They frequently include marketable securities in which surplus funds have been invested.

A sharp distinction should always be drawn between investments of temporary nature, which can be quickly sold and investments made in affiliated companies or in outside projects which cannot be readily liquidated.

ANOTHER item usually found on the balance sheet is "deferred assets." These consist of prepaid insurance and payments made in advance which will not be converted into cash under ordinary circumstances. They also include expenses which have been incurred for special purposes but which the management believes should not be charged to the operations of any one year.

The costs of originally organizing the company or of doing new financing are often large items. They will not recur again unless additional financing should be done. If charged off immediately they might result in a good business year showing a loss and presenting an untrue picture of the corporation's affairs to the stockholders.

Such expenses can properly be considered as capital investments.

SINCE deferred assets of this kind do not represent any real property which can be changed into cash, they are written down by charging a portion of them off from operations each year until the items finally disappear from the balance sheet. Items such as "amortization of bond discount" and "Amortization of organization expense" found on the income account represent the gradual liquidation of deferred assets.

ON some corporation statements will be found another item called "Good will." The most conservative organizations do not make any provision for this. The value of a company's reputation, its customers and its organization represent a real asset.

Good will attempts to put a value on this, since it often is the product of expensive sales and advertising work which have not been shown in immediate profits. The value of good will on a balance sheet, however, must be regarded with a little distrust.

Large allowances for good will are often made to give a weak statement an appearance of strength. In addition to this, bad management can quickly destroy good will and there is no way to convert the item to cash unless the entire property should be sold as a going concern.

Tomorrow we shall look at the liability side of a balance sheet.

2 PASTORS IN 1 PULPIT IN FARRELL CHURCH

FARRELL, Pa., July 10.—St. George's Serbian Church has two pastors as a result of a misunderstanding. The Rev. George Milosavljevich, assigned here by the bishop, found the Rev. J. Vuksich in the pulpit. The official board states that Vuksich will stay as long as he wishes.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

A PROGRAM from the International Advertising Association's convention will be broadcast over the NBC System, including KDKA, at 9:30 o'clock tonight. The entertainers on this program will be Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas; Edgar Guest, poet; Frances Louise Block, contralto, and the Ipana troubadours. Over the same station at 8 o'clock the Stromberg-Carlson Sextet will offer old-time song favorites. The male quartet will sing Keith McLeod's "Treasure Chest of Memory," Nevin's "The Rosary," "On the Banks of the Brandywine," "Loch Lomond," Bowers' "Chinese Lullaby" and "How Can I Leave Thee?" Keith McLeod, vibraphone soloist of the Stromberg-Carlson Sextet, will play Ernest Ball's "Mother Machree" and Godfrey Ludlow, violin soloist, will play "Water Boy."

A program of excerpts from operas will be presented by the Continentals, an NBC grand opera ensemble, at 8:30 o'clock. KDKA will be in the hookup. Cesare Sodero, maestro of NBC grand opera productions, will lead the orchestra in "March of the Priests," a stately processional from Mendelssohn's "Athalia." Astrid Fjelde, soprano, will sing "Ozean! Du Ungeheurer," from Carl Maria von Weber's "Oberon." Julian Oliver, tenor, and Frederic Baer, baritone, will sing three arias from Boito's "Mefistofele" and Grace Leslie, contralto, will sing a selection from Flotow's "Martha." Miss Fjelde and Miss Leslie will sing a duet from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda." Maestro Sodero and the orchestra will close the program with the Romance from Schumann's "Fourth Symphony."

Ohman and Arden, popular Broadway two-piano team, will appear as guest artists in tonight's broadcast by the Seiberling Singers. They will be heard over WCAE at 8:30 o'clock. Immediately after the opening selection "Soliloquy," by the orchestra, the guest stars will present a duet fantasie "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny." Later in the same period they will play Ohman's own composition "Jacquette." A saxophone quartet will play Bonnell's "Crystal Suite. Kreisler composition, "La Gitana," will be heard as a violin solo, played by Lou Raderman.

Mildred Hunt, singing some of the newest song hits, and Willard Robison's "crooning," will be featured in the Eveready hour to be broadcast over the NBC System, including WCAE, at 9:00 o'clock. Miss Hunt will sing "I'm Walking Between Raindrops," and the popular "Dream House." Mr. Robison will present some of his own compositions, self-accompanied on the piano. Novelty numbers by the Eveready orchestra, under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret, will include Alter's "Moon Madness," and the fox-trot "Will o' the Wisp."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Green Flame By Louise Peple Armstrong

"DEBBY and I are having a special supper tonight, Brian," said Austin Arnold as he met his friend at the doors of his bank. "She's sent you a pressing invitation to join us, and I hope you will. It's our seventh anniversary!"

When Austin smiled at Brian Waddell there was a happiness in his frank blue eyes that made Brian drop his dark ones, vainly try to control the tell-tale flush that sprang to his lean, tanned cheeks. "I'm sorry—but—"

Austin laughed out easily. "Debby told me not to accept a refusal. We knew what you'd think. You imagine we want to be alone, but we'd never feel that way about you. Why, only this morning, Debby said: 'You make Brian come. Remember, he introduced us, and we've had so many jolly times together! I'm selfish enough to be glad he hasn't married—when he does we might lose our best friend! So you see, ole top," Austin added in a more sober tone, "you're a member of the family!"

The hand he placed on his friend's arm was heavy with an emotion Austin didn't care to show. "You brought Debby into my life, Brian, I'd think a lot of you, if for no other reason. Nothing could break our friendship, man!"

When Austin had hung up hat and coat, and turned to go into the vault to get his consignment of coin and currency and carry it into the teller's cage, a subtle change came over Brian Waddell's handsome, clear-cut features. Brian also was a teller, and he walked into his own cage, next to Austin's, and began setting things right there. It was almost 9 o'clock and on the stroke of the hour customers would flock in, for the Commercial National was in the center of a big retail business section and prospered accordingly.

Austin came out of the vault, carrying two drawers of coin, with packages of bills piled on them. He was whistling as he came, and he swung his burden easily on the counter and turned to go back into the vault.

"Say, Brian," he called, "watch that stuff while I bring the rest—it's too darned much trouble to lock the door every time I go out."

"All right," said Brian in a casual tone, "but I think you ought to be more careful, Austin. You know the rule is—"

"Bother rules," cried Austin, with a laugh, as again he disappeared into the vault.

Brian's black brows drew into a straight line and his well-shaped mouth set in a half smile. A studied expression had crept into his eyes; his body tensed as the body of a cat will hold itself rigid before a mouse-hole. And yet, he kept telling himself, nothing was going to happen. Nothing whatever would happen until after closing hour, when Austin Arnold would count his cash and make settlement for the day. Then—

No. Austin Arnold and Deborah, his bride of seven months, were't going to have any wedding anniversary celebration that night.

Other clerks hurried past Brian, busy with their tasks. One or two stopped to nod and grin, but most of the men ignored him. Brian was a silent, taciturn fellow and his co-workers had never been drawn to him. It was a matter of amused wonder that Austin Arnold, lively, bubbling with good spirits and popular with all, should care so much for reserved, dark Brian Waddell. Yet there was a charm about him, and he was very good-looking.

As is often the case with a man unpopular with other men, the girls were crazy about Brian. They spoiled him, and he took their admiration as a matter of course. It seemed ironic that Deborah Jennings, the only girl who had ever made his heart beat faster, should have turned him down for Austin, his best friend.

Brian had taken Austin's marriage like a true sport, and his fellow workers had admired him for that. As time rolled on they had decided he couldn't have been very hard hit, for he often was invited to Austin's little flat, and he always went. Later his associates began to "kid" him about his jilting, not that they meant to be cruel. As a matter of fact it was a sign that Brian was winning their friendship in spite of his cold reserve.

On this particular morning Sam Welford stopped at Brian's cage and said: "Heard Austin asking you out to the celebration tonight. Seven months since he and Debby married, and very month he celebrates and asks the defeated rival to come and be crowed over! "Guess Austin's celebrating his raise, too, this month," Sam added thoughtlessly. "Knew that old man raised his salary, didn't you?"

Brian's face went dull, brick-red, then white; he gripped the bars of his cage and fought for self-control. The president had raised Austin, ahead of him! Blind, mad rage choken him—and for a moment his mask of reserve slipped. Sam Walford stared at him in shocked surprise, muttered an incoherent apology, then turned and fled.

In a moment or two Brian's coolness returned to him. He remembered what would happen this evening when Austin Arnold counted his cash. He could wait for that. But he regretted having betrayed his true feelings to Sam Walford. Well, let it go; Sam could be convinced later that his eyes had deceived him.

When Sam walked back past Brian's cage Brian smiled at him. Sam started to stop, then nodded briefly and walked on.

The bell clanged, the doors of the bank were now opened for the day and both Brian and Austin were immediately immersed in their duties, counting over money handed them, checking it off with expert dexterity, and all the while listening interestedly to what the customers said to them, replying politely, smiling. All in the day's business; only Austin's good spirits were sincere.

"Does me good to see your face," a customer said to the youth. "Happiness written all over it!"

"Why shouldn't there be?" asked Austin with a grin. "I get a big kick out of living, Mister!"

At last the hour for closing, the great doors were shut. Adding machines were rolled into cages and a merrily efficient sound of tap-tapping began.

Presently there come an ominous silence in the cage next Brian's.

"Good Gosh," Austin exclaimed. "I'm five hundred dollars out! Now isn't that the devil, Brian? But you go right out home, Debby'll be expecting us. Tell her I'll come just as soon as I check this stuff over and find my mistake."

Brian's face was immobile as he nodded sympathetically at his friend.

"Austin Arnold is short five hundred dollars in his cash," said the president, and he looked fixedly at Brian who had just entered his office in answer to a summons, closing the door behind him.

Brian again smiled, very sympathetically. "I'm distressed to hear it," he said. "And if I can—" he glanced over at Austin, who stood across from them, his face white, his blue eyes startled. "I waited out at your house last night as long as I could. Told Debby not to worry, as I was sure—"

But Austin continued to stare at him, disconcertingly.

"We've found the thief," said the president quietly.

"Look here," Austin burst out in an agonized voice, "don't talk like that, Mr. Williams! Brian only meant it for a joke! He's been urging me to be more careful—about locking my cage up when I go into the vault—and—and I'm sure—"

"You liar!" cried Brian, clenching his fists. So Austin had dared accuse him!" You miserable little liar! I'll kill you if you dare say—"

"Wait!" the president's hand was on his arm. The office door again swung open, and on the threshold a police officer stood beside Sam Walford.

"There he is!" said Sam, pointing to Brian. "I saw him walk into Austin's cage the day before yesterday—taking the package of bills. First I thought he was playing a joke on Austin—they're such good friends. But now—well just look at him! He's too scared to pretend, and—"

Brian didn't hear the rest; the voices about him were meaningless in his ears, a sea of murmurings. He could only see Austin Arnold's hard blue eyes—in which faith and trust in him had died.

WHILE engaged in mastering the interesting item, and making his reflections thereon, let us pause to describe the man as he sat in the window in the twilight of the hotel, with the broad sheet spread before him. It was apparent that he was a gentleman, manly, with a leisurely expression of countenance suggestive of the fact that he need be in no hurry to assert his good looks, as they were sufficient to assert themselves; and if he kept curling that long, tawny mustache round his thumb and finger you might be sure that it was an action caused by nervous anxiety rather than by any thought of improving that appendage, although—

Coal Rate Compromise Is Not Acceptable Here

Pittsburgh district coal shippers are naturally up in arms against the compromise differential of 35 cents between Pittsburgh and southern fields agreed upon by railroad officials in conference in New York. T. A. Dunn, chairman of the general traffic committee of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, says the natural differential is 60 cents a ton, and that the recent adjustment by several carriers, fixing at 45 cents a rate that would help to rehabilitate northern mines was a compromise as far as the justice of Pittsburgh demands was concerned.

It is hardly to be wondered at that shippers of this district are somewhat skeptical of the friendship of the railroads that serve it, and which they have helped to build through the heavy coal tonnage which they have given them. They see greater loyalty to local industry in the activities of the southern carriers, which have been militantly combative in efforts to hold, through freight rates favorable to southern mines, but discriminatory against the North, markets that naturally belong to this district.

The southern roads have stood by their friends, but can it be said the northern roads have done the same for their patrons? It has been the southern roads that made whatever threat of "rate war" that may exist, which, of course, is an empty one. Rates are not put into effect without consent of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that body would not permit anything likely to prove ruinous to the railroads.

Pittsburgh shippers, it is indicated, will carry their fight to maintain the 45-cent differential to the Interstate Commerce Commission, to which the district has appealed for fair treatment for years and received some recognition only after seeing one of its former great industries nearly wiped out, partly because of discriminatory rates.

And the district is not especially pleased to see the carriers, which should naturally support it for their own good, so fearful of a "rate war" with the South. Pittsburgh would like to see northern railroads do a little fighting for the coal industry of this part of the country.

He Is Very, VERY Unhappy

Britain Asks, "Should He Be Caged?"

PAPA ORANG-UTAN GRIEVES.

This is the papa orang-utan in London's Zoo. Nellie, his wife, recently died of a broken heart and tuberculosis combined. Her child died of consumption and the mother never got over it.

Papa, above, is all that is left of the family. His name is Ginger, widower of Nellie.

Unless they turn him loose in Africa, where he can find another Nellie and renew home ties, he will die, too. Grief will kill him soon.

The British ask, as well they may, "Have we the RIGHT to keep caged up creatures that in form, at least, in expression, in bony structure and in blood qualities are so much like ourselves?"

It is wrong. It is also wrong to keep men caged up in mines where they die young, clerks caged up in offices where they bore themselves to death. But it's all a part of civilization.

Poor Ginger must endure his lot with the rest of us higher primates.

New Ideas?

The World Does Not Want Them.

When the first iron steamboats were made "experts" said "those iron ships can never cross the ocean. And, anyhow, they couldn't possibly carry coal enough to take them across."

But they do cross.

Now, when you talk of men in airships attacking and destroying United States cities, you are told that they can't cross the ocean or carry fuel enough to bring them over in numbers at all dangerous.

But Britain's newest war plane, "Blackburn Napier Ripon II," carries a one-ton torpedo that it can fire with amazing accuracy GOING THREE MILES A MINUTE. Think that over

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 10.—The spiritual distortion of the younger generation has provided an endless theme for writers, playwrights and moralists. If they are to be believed, flaming youth is burning out in a white hot flame. New York is painted a paradise of adolescent wickedness.

The moment a child is able to reach for a cocktail here he begins the scamper off on a sin-stained career. The girl who reaches 18 without being trundled off to an alcoholic cure is regarded as eccentric. At least this has become a growing notion.

Somehow the other side of the picture is never revealed. There is a young man of 20 who is studying dentistry. At 5 o'clock every evening he becomes a taxi driver until midnight. He reaches his college every morning at 8 and supports his mother.

There are two sisters who are waitresses in one of the chains of restaurants. Their working hours are from 7 in the evening until midnight. On account of their beauty they have had three theatrical offers—one from Ziegfeld no less. They support themselves as waitresses and do social welfare work during the day.

That the younger generation is not going to pot is also proved by the large number of ambitious young men who are working as bellhops, elevator operators, movie ushers and soda jerkers and devoting spare time to studying for a profession. These are numbered in the thousands.

Nor is this ambitious activity confined to sons and daughters of poverty stricken homes. A recent social survey shows there are in New York more than 200,000 young men and women under 25 whose family affluence precludes the necessity of working, yet who have become financially independent.

And if one takes the trouble to visit the various social centers where intellectual attainments are made possible for young folk they will find them crowded, indeed far more crowded than cheap dance halls and other haunts where youth is supposed to fling away morals and hope.

One of the well-known illustrators has his studio adjoining his home and it is here he turns out his enormous magazine output. Recently his wife employed a new maid. After a few days of seeing the artist around the house all day, the maid approached her mistress with the suggestion she would take a slight reduction in salary. "I'll do this," she explained, "until your husband gets on his feet."

The block in West Sixty-seventh street running off of Central Park West houses more artists and illustrators than any other block in town. The Hotel des Artistes is there and nearly all the apartment buildings are the north lighted studio type.

Among the artists who live or have lived in the artistic center on West Sixty-seventh street are Penhryn Stanlaws, Howard Chandler Christy, James Montgomery Flagg, W. T. Benda, Harrison Fisher, J. Knowles Hare, Coles Phillips, R. M. Brinkerhoff, Ray Rohn, Dean Cornwell, Tony Sarg, LeRoy Ripley and Haskell Coffin.

An actor reveals a discouraging side of his calling. He is a popular leading man and has appeared in many sterling productions. One play in which he appeared on Broadway ran 18 months. For the last two years he has had but three weeks' employment and while his salary was $850 a week he finds his pay averages much less than a small clerkship. But boys will be actors.

Theatrical salaries appear grand, but unless employment is steady they are often far below the average wage.

For years I have been among those who suffer in silence at the theater while ambidextrous neighbors trample over my feet for a hasty exit when the curtain falls. Last night the worm turned. With the crook of my cane I caught a fellow around the ankle, who had pirouetted on both my bunions, and down he went into the aisle, high hat, waxed mustache and all. It sometimes takes time, but we of the Northwest Mounted always get our man.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Nature and Books

"IF YOU study nature in books, when you go out of doors you cannot find her." That sentence of Louis Agassiz's, quoted by Henry Fairfield Osborn at the unveiling a few weeks ago of a bust of Agassiz in the New York "Hall of Fame," is like the proverbs of Solomon—true and wise if properly understood. The object of such sayings is to shock and awaken the mind with an apparent paradox.

Of course, nobody can "study nature in books." The phrase is a conscious contradiction in terms. But it would be a great damage to the cause of popular interest in nature if what that great naturalist said should lead anybody to think that one must be a geologist, ichthyologist, botanist, entomologist, biologist or ornithologist in order to read about nature with understanding, enjoyment and profit. Most nature books are written for people who do not study natural objects at first hand. But everybody can understand such books if they are not too technical, and can learn from them a great deal about nature. Agassiz's remark in reality applies only to the needs of serious students and original investigators. It will be found that a very large share of every naturalist's information has been derived from reading—a statement that applies to all other students and learners whatever.

The actual researcher addresses his efforts to a narrow line of investigation, outside of which his ignorance is only enlightened by the lamps of borrowed knowledge. If it were not so of what use would be our vast and fast growing stores of scientific literature?

Yet it is true that everyone should go to nature rather than to books as far as possible. But in the vast majority of cases he must at least begin with books, or else (which is usually better) with personal instruction by some kind of tutor. Take the beginner in astronomy, for instance. He may by earnest application learn the constellatons and planets by the aid of printed descriptions and charts, but he can do it a hundred times as quickly by having them pointed out in the sky by someone who knows them already. So, too, with birds, flowers, trees, insects, fishes, rocks, soils, etc. Nothing is so effectual as personal guidance, and that implies "field work" in one sense or another.

But I would not have anyone remain in complete ignorance of these things because he can find no other instructors than books. In the summer time when so many thousands are traversing the great and beautiful scenes of our land with automobiles—scenes crowded with masterpieces of nature in every department of her work—all should become observers as full of intelligent curiosity as a Humboldt. The interest of such trips may be enormously increased by taking along a few books that throw light upon the geography, the geology, the characteristic birds, plants and trees, the soils and productions of the counties and states that are crossed.

For too many a star is only a star and a rock only a stone, though one star seen may be Sirius, famous and worshipped by priests and kings from the oldest times of Egypt, and another may be Arcturus, which the Almighty is said to have spoken about to Job in the desert, and one "stone" at the roadside may be basalt, belched from the molten bowels of the earth when the mountains were born, and another may be sandstone laid down at the bottom of a primeval sea and filled with fossils of vanished creatures and with some of the oldest footprints of marching time. It is better to know these things even from books than not to know them at all.

Dangerous Truth

DR. J. M. DORAN, national prohibition commissioner in Seattle, declared prohibition is, in practice, meant solely for the workingman. He said:

"Who cares whether you and I take a drink? We're white-collar men, we don't produce anything, and our habits have no effect on the prosperity of the country."

Probably the truth, but a dangerous admission. Louis XVI thought the habits of the Bourbons made no difference. He lost his head.

Is it the purpose of the prohibition bureau to make liquor scarce merely to make it too expensive for the worker, or to fight it as an evil? The manner in which they answer this will determine the fate of prohibition.

If the sweat of toil is to be turned into booze for the rich and idleness in which to drink it, then is the experiment doomed certainly to failure.

Brothers and Sisters

IT pleases you to see brothers and sisters appear to be congenial.

The fact impresses you that they seem to get so much more out of life.

But how do you act toward your brothers and sisters?

Are you cross and irritable, ever ready to enter into an argument or dispute their right to present their ideas?

Do you try to enforce your opinions upon other members of your family?

Does the presence of your brother or your sister dampen the ardor of your enjoyment?

Do you feel that you cannot make as favorable an impression on others when a member of your family is present?

Or do you make your brothers and sisters feel uncomfortable when in the society of outsiders by displaying an antagonistic spirit or by ridiculing the words and actions of your relatives?

If you are this sort of person you are losing friends as well as missing a lot of happiness.

You are depriving them and others of additional joy they might experience if you were trying to get along amicably with your brothers and sisters.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Little White Road

"LITTLE white road that goes straying
Over far hill and plain,
Lingering, wandering, playing,
Here, by wide fields of grain,
Little road, blithely going,
Where do you lead by day?"
"On, where a brook is flowing,
On, beyond meadows gay."
"Then, when the day gives over,
Where do you lead by night?"
"On, where the moonlit clover
Scatters its magic white;
On, where to realms enchanted
Whispering forests change;
Pine trees by nature planted
Night can make vague and strange.
Night with her starry legions
Fashions the world anew,
Flooding with charm the regions
Little roads wander through."

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THE women in two flats in Chicago were having a fight over who ought to be blamed for stealing the papers out of the hall.

"Well," says Mrs. Buntz to her lawyer, "she ain't going to do nothing to me, or I'll tell the whole neighborhood how she has a gentleman friend and how her husband is a bootlegger instead of a millionaire like he pretends to be, and how her mother-in-law calls her names and—"

"Here, here!" says the lawyer, "you got a lot of dope on her, but how good is it? How do you know all this stuff?"

"Didn't I take care of her talky old parrot all last summer while she was summering in the mountains?"

Some Would Drop Out

A MAN who had recently come into a fortune received an income tax blank from the Treasury Department. He replied as follows:

"Dear Treasury—I received your application blank. I already belong to several good lodges and so I don't care to join your income tax.

Impossible Task

PASTOR (meeting Pitter with a pint bottle of brandy): "Are you going to drink all that?—you you are no better with your drinking."

Pitter: "No, half of this is for my friend."

Pastor: "Then show your courage and throw your half down that drain."

Pitter: "Sorry, I can't—mine is the bottom half."

A Curiosity

MURIEL had been to the zoo for the first time, and was giving her grandmother a long account of what she had seen.

"And which animal did you like best, dear?" asked her grandmother when Muriel had finished.

"Oh, the elephant!" was the reply. "It was wonderful to see him pick up buns with his vacuum-cleaner!"

Carelessness

"STEPHEN, dear," whispered the burglar's bride, as he started on his evening's work, "try to be a little more quiet when you come in tonight."

"Certainly, dear," replied the fond husband. "Did I wake you up las' night?"

"No, but you awakened mother, and I don't want her running up to the prison and complaining to father that I married an amateur."

Beaten!

A MAN met a Negro who said he could eat four loaves, four pounds of cheese, and drink four quarts of beer at one sitting. After watching him perform the feat, the man made a bet with a friend that the Negro could repeat the performance.

A time was arranged and the Negro started on his meal. All went well until three parts of the food and drink had been consumed, when Sambo confessed himself beaten.

"You rascal!" cried his backer, angrily. "You've made me lose $5.

"Well, boss," replied Sambo, "I don't know what's wrong wid me. I was all right at de rehearsal dis morning."

Soft Drinks

ALONG our roadsides the humble vendor of soft drinks is now busiest. He plays a useful part in life.

Americans drink eleven thousand million bottles of pop, sarsaparilla, ginger ale, root beer and the like a year. Into them go 250,000 tons of sugar, 2,500 tons of fruit acid, 25 tons of artificial color, a million gallons of flavoring extract and four hundred million gallons of carbonated water.

What is more important, these drinks, in addition to being pleasant and cooling, are pure. The spectre of adulteration, once alarming, has been laid.

It is consoling to think of one kind of liquid refreshments against which even the sternest Puritan offers no protest.

Rachel and God

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Rachel was a Jewish girl. Her father was an orthodox Jew of the old type.

He was very strict and brought his daughter up according to all of the prohibitions of his peculiar code. Very early Rachel, who was inclined to be independent, rebelled at this, and in the course of time, when she was about 18 years old, she ran away.

She was a resourceful girl and made her own living and succeeded in going through college and receiving a degree. Afterwards she was successful in getting a position in the city library.

She was holding this position and living in a little rented room nearby on a side street. She continued to be an atheist and to regard the idea of God and His commandments as a sort of tyrannical affair devised by the old to harass the young.

One night after being out at some entertainment, she returned to her room about 11 o'clock. She climbed the stairs, unlocked the door and turned on the gas jet.

What was her surprise to find God sitting on a chair in the middle of the room. She knew it was God although she couldn't see his face, as it was rather blurred. But something in her told her it was He, this God that she had rebelled against and defied. She naturally thought He had come to punish her, so she fell down on her knees and began to pray to Him, repeating all the orthodox prayers she knew and asking for His mercy. He made no answer. Finally, in surprise, she said, "I am willing to serve you from now on, to do whatever you wish me to do. From henceforth I offer you my service if you will spare my punishment."

"I neither reward nor punish," said God. "Good and bad deeds are their own rewards and punishment."

"Then I will serve you anyway," said Rachel.

"What do I want with your service?" He replied. "Kings and nations obey me, the waters, the hills, and all things. Why should I bother about your service? I do not want you to serve me."

"Then I will give you everything I have," said Rachel. "I have a few hundred dollars in the bank and I will give that to your church tomorrow and a good part of all I have henceforth." She heard God laugh softly and He answered her.

"What do I want with it? I own all the money in the banks; eventually it comes back to me. I own all the gold in the mines, the silver. The cattle upon the thousand hills are mine and all the fishes in the sea. What do I want with your few dollars?"

"Then what are you here for?" said Rachel.

"I am here for the same reason I am everywhere else in my universe, to see how I can help you. That is my business. I am not the ruler of the universe sitting on some far-off throne. I am keeping the universe alive, making the rivers run and the sun rise and being on watch, caring for everything. What I want to do is to find out how I can help you. That is all the interest I have in you."

"I did not understand," said Rachel.

"I thought you didn't," said God, and vanished.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

A NICE little English woman, with a pet store on Madison avenue, in New York, sent a parrot to Philadelphia on an order from a pair of ladies past middle age.

The parrot hadn't been in stock for more than three days and very little was known about his vocabulary. He hadn't choosed to talk. So, explaining this, the lady sent him along to his new home.

Two days later came a telegram. Polly was on his way back. The little imp swore like a trooper and it wasn't cute, it was frightfully embarrassing.

The day of Polly's return, a night club hostess strolled into the shop, attracted by some puppies in the window. Polly was letting loose his own personal opinion of the ladies in Philadelphia. A broad smile came on the face of the night club lady, who asked the price.

"He is $500," said the pet store lady, and the hostess called a cab. Polly was all set for a life after lamp-light, his heart high. What were a few bad words between friends?

Polly says: If one lady doesn't like you, it doesn't mean your life is a blank.

Guess the nationality of the maid who tacked a sign outside her kitchen door reading: "Wate pant." I ruined my blouse leaning against the woodwork before I knew what she meant.

Birmingham, Alabama, is broadcasting that it has a baby 7 months old who talks well, and said "daddy" when two weeks old. Now watch and see if California doesn't produce a bigger and better baby, one who says more in less time. And the lovely thing about it is that California always tells you who it is and where it lives, and then—you know—why it is bigger and better!

A little girl of 10 on the subway alone in New York, traveling to Brooklyn! It was evening and almost dark. The child seemed unafraid and no doubt was used to such neglect.

A woman who weighed about 200 pounds was having dinner on a roof the other night with her family. She wore a large flowered dress and had black ribbon bands going around her figure at her hip line. She didn't look like a woman, she looked like a public building. Those are the folks upon whom some of the beauty experts should center their attention. They are good women, no doubt, but they do such terrible things to good scenery.
